SAYS TWO BODIES TELL RAILROADS WHAT TO DO

J. E. Anderson, Cleveland, Talks to Traffic Club.

SAYS ONE BODY TELLS THEM WHAT TO CHARGE

While Another Tells Them What It Will Cost To Reduce Their Commodity.

"Railroads are the only corporations which have one body to tell them what they shall pay for the commodity they produce and another body to tell them what they shall sell it for," declared J. E. Anderson, Cleveland, division freight agent for the Big Four, in addressing the Marion Traffic club, at the Busy Bee cafeteria, last night. About twenty members of the club attended the meeting. The official roster of the club was distributed at the meeting and showed the club to have fifty members. Mr. Anderson praised the spirit shown by men in Marion and declared that it was responsible for the growth of the town, more than the location or facilities.

"Railroads are like other industries in that they produce a commodity which is for sale—the transportation of passengers and merchandise. They are unfortunately circumscribed by regulations to which no other business is subjected. One body on the right side tells them what they may sell their commodity for and another body on the left side tells them what it will cost them to produce it.

Could Save Millions.

"In the early eighties, public opinion changed against railroads and laws were passed to control and regulate them. If foresight had been practiced then, expenditure of millions could be saved now. During the war the equipment of the carriers was allowed to depreciate and the railroads must rehabilitate their depleted equipment. They must establish their credit. They are doing it.

"People get just what they pay for from the railroads. In Cleveland our passenger station is a little old. Our road and others are planning a gigantic terminal in Cleveland, which is to cost $60,000,000. The financing is nearly complete, the work has really begun."

D. R. Biggert, vice president of the Traffic club, told of his experiences while in the East recently. Guests at the banquet beside the speakers were E. B. A. Kellum, division passenger agent for the Big Four at Cleveland; C. L. Farrell, superintendent of station service for the Erie at Chicago, and Fred B. Scherff extended an invitation to the members of the club to attend the meeting of the Manufacturers' association of Central Ohio to be held at the Marion Steam Shovel plant next Wednesday.

NEGRO ELECTROCUTED AFTER ELEVENTH TIME

Twenty Minutes Are Consumed in Killing Slayer.

Little Rock, Ark., March 11.—James Wells, 18, negro murderer, was electrocuted at the state penitentiary after 11 unsuccessful attempts had been made by an inexperienced electrician to electrocute him. The twelfth attempt, according to witnesses, was successful.

Going to the chair singing, he continued to sing until the first charge of electricity was sent through his body. Wells was examined by the state physicians, who pronounced him still alive. Another charge of electricity was sent through his body, but with the same result. Witnesses began to leave the death room and only a few were present when the last charges were sent through his body and Wells finally was pronounced dead. Fully 20 minutes were consumed in putting him to death. Wells was convicted of killing Peter Frenz, a farmer near Monticello.

One attractive thing about a silent man is that the world is always expecting him to make a big noise some day.

GACKENBACH TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Is Sentence of Judge Grant E. Mouser This Morning.

BAKER SENTENCED TO LIFE IN REFORMATORY

Sentence To Be Carried Out Between Midnight and Sunrise of Tuesday, June 20.

John C. Gackenbach this morning in the common pleas court was sentenced to death in the electric chair as a penalty for the slaying of Joseph Charles Boone, aged Isaly Dairy company employe on the evening of February 8. Sentence was passed by Judge Grant E. Mouser and provides that Gackenbach die at an hour between midnight and sunrise on the morning of Tuesday, June 20.

Edward Baker, aged fifteen years, of Franklin, Pennsylvania, who entered a plea of not guilty to the murder in the first degree when arraigned on an indictment Monday morning, voluntarily entered a plea of guilty to murder in the second degree. He was given a life sentence in the reformatory at Mansfield.

Court-Room Crowded.

When the youths were arraigned in court this morning the room was crowded, many were unable to get near the doors of the court-room. As the hearing was in progress it was so quiet that the proceedings could be heard easily in the lobby. It was 9:12 o'clock when the court was called to order and two minutes later Edward Baker was brought in from the jury room, where he was in conference with his attorneys, L. E. Myers and J. D. Williamson, appointed by the court to look after his interests.

Baker arose as the judge started to address him and after Judge Mouser stated that Baker had entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of first degree murder March 6, and asked if he wanted to change his plea. Baker answered in the affirmative. "What plea do you want to make?" asked the judge. The prisoner replied, "Guilty to murder in the second degree."

Knew Gackenbach Had Gun.

Judge Mouser then started inquiring into the case and to learn from the prisoner when he met John C. Gackenbach. The boy stated that he met him at Franklin, Pennsylvania, and stated that he was a deserter from the army then. The boy spoke in a clear tone and displayed no sign of nervousness. When asked how he happened to go with Gackenbach on the night of February 8 the Baker boy stated that they went to the home of Father Joseph Denning to hold him up. He stated that he knew Gackenbach had a revolver and the reason they did not carry out their intentions was because there was another priest in the house.

Baker continued to relate the details of the visit to the office of the Isaly Dairy company and told how Gackenbach demanded the money of Boone and what transpired at the office. As to the question of how he felt when he heard that the man Gackenbach shot was dead, Baker replied "Not very good." When the Judge reminded the boy of his mother and her teachings, he broke into tears and said he remembered that she tried to teach him right. He said he did not have much of a home after his mother died little more than three years ago and that his father caused him to become angry by saying he was no good.

When asked as to his age the boy said he was fifteen years old. He was asked if Gackenbach had any influence over him and to this he replied that he liked him. "Did you not have a conscience when you went with him to rob and murder?" asked Judge Mouser. The boy replied, "Yes, I knew it was wrong."

Says Confession Is Voluntary.

Judge Mouser had nearly completed the examination of Baker, on whom he reserved decision for the time, when Gackenbach entered and took his seat beside Baker. The Judge informed Gackenbach that Monday he entered a plea of guilty to murder in the first degree and that by his own confession he convicted himself, but that the court was without power to pass sentence on this charge without making inquiry.

"Was your confession voluntary?" asked the judge.

"It was," replied Gackenbach.

"Are you ready to stand the sentence and punishment of the court?" asked Judge Mouser.

"I am, sir," was Gackenbach's reply.

"Notwithstanding your offer I will examine some witnesses," stated the judge.

Sheriff Frank A. Washburn was called to the stand and related the story of how Gackenbach made his first confession on the evening of February 25 and told the witnesses to the confession. This confession was read by Prosecuting Attorney Fred W. Warner and also a second confession written by the prisoner while alone in his cell on the evening of February 27. Chief J. W. Thompson was next called and testified as to the confessions and of their being made voluntarily by Gackenbach.

After the testimony the prisoner was asked if the statements made were true and he replied "Yes sir." "Were they made voluntarily?" asked the judge. "Yes sir," replied Gackenbach. "Have you anything to say?" asked the judge. "I want to throw myself on the mercy of the court," was the prisoner's reply.

Attorney Speaks for Prisoner.

When the attorneys for Gackenbach were asked if they had anything to say, Attorney W. N. Harder reviewed the attitude of the prisoner and how he came into court and entered a plea of guilty to a charge that would take him to the electric chair. He said it was his opinion that a man with a sane mind would not make such a plea. He said he thought that perhaps Gackenbach may have been led to the move by being under the hand of the law or spending his time in jail without friends with whom to counsel. "But he has been insistent in his attitude and I can not feel but what there is a question as to his sanity," Mr. Harder said. "How a normal being can take such a step with such a feeling as he has shown is a mystery." He asked that the prisoner be examined.

Attorney W. R. Marsh, also spoke in behalf of the prisoner, stating that he was of sub-normal mind and that it was within the power of the court to grant clemency if this was the case.

Prosecuting Attorney Fred W. Warner in his argument stated that it was the belief of a large number of the citizens lately and had been stated publicly that the court-house was dedicated with the understanding that no person was to be sent to death or the county would lose the edifice. He stated the absurdity of this belief, but said that some of the best citizens had expressed it as being true.

The prosecutor reviewed the life of the murdered man and classed him as one of Marion's best citizens, telling of how he worked his entire life to educate his children and how he met his death by defending the property of his employer. "If there ever was a time when one must be made to pay, it is now," said the prosecutor, "for the safety and good of society and the town, an example must be made."

Judge Questions Prisoner.

Judge Mouser again directed his questions to the prisoner and asked if he had ever been in any asylum. Gackenbach stated that he never was and that none of his people ever had been. He said he was a deserter from the army three times and was now a deserter. He stated that he knew right from wrong and to the questions of the court pointed out the attorneys who were appointed to defend him, but said he could not call their names. He further stated that he realized he was in court and on a serious charge.

In his review before passing sentence, Judge Grant E. Mouser said in part "My reason has been appealed to by my sympathies. I realize the defendant, John C. Gackenbach, has come in and confessed and has openly advised the court he is guilty of murder in the first degree in the perpetration of a robbery. A jury under charge would have a right to recommend mercy, but it becomes the duty of the court to pass upon the degree and exact the penalty which the law prescribes. I have considered if you accomplished the robbery, if you did not it was because of resistance and if this prompted murder."

At this point Judge Mouser read an opinion of W. Z. Davis, a judge of the supreme court and former resident of Marion, in which it was held that where a person starts out with the intentions of committing a crime and kills a person, he is guilty of first degree murder whether he commits the crime intended or not. Judge Mouser then thanked the attorneys he appointed for Gackenbach in assisting him in reaching a conclusion.

"Did Not Go To Kill."

Continuing his address to Gackenbach Judge Mouser said, "You seem to be a man of intelligence. You knew you went to rob and you know you went to the home of Father Denning to rob him, but were baffled. You went to the dairy where you met a man you did not know and who never injured you and he stood never thinking he was in the presence of a man with murderous intentions. I have a duty to perform now regardless of what my sentiments may be." Judge Mouser then drew a word picture of the murdered man and what his expression might have been when Gackenbach drew the revolver which snuffed out his life. He pictured the man with his children and grandchildren and what his life meant. Gackenbach took advantage of a pause and remarked "I did not go to kill him." The judge said "You went to rob him and if you had put away your gun you would not be here now." Gackenbach said "I did not go in with the intentions to shoot him and had no thought of murder."

Continuing his charge the judge said "It would have been beautiful if you had thought of your mother and her teachings. His life is gone and now the law must take your life. When I look back at the life of the man there is only one sentence I can pronounce, it is for the court to say." The prisoner arose at the request of the judge who said "Have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed on you?" The prisoner said "No." The judge then passed sentence which was in part as follows:

"It is the judgment of the court that you, John C. Gackenbach, be taken from the court-room to the county jail and that within thirty days you be removed to the Ohio penitentiary in Columbus and delivered to the warden, there to be held within the enclosure until a time between midnight and sunrise on the twentieth day of June when the warden, his successor or deputy shall cause to pass through your body a current of electricity of sufficient intensity and sufficient duration to cause death, and subsequent currents until you are pronounced dead."

Shakes Baker's Hand.

As soon as the judge completed his sentence Gackenbach turned to Sheriff Frank A. Washburn and put out his arms to have the handcuffs put on. While the sheriff was reaching in his pockets for the cuffs, Gackenbach turned and shook hands with Baker and said, "Now you see what you done. I get the electric chair." Gackenbach did not show the least sign of emotion, but Baker broke into tears as Gackenbach started away.

The audience started to leave before sentence was passed on Baker and the court had to call order.

Baker was then asked to stand up and on complying asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed. He replied in the negative and the judge informed him how close he was standing to the electric chair, but that he had received a letter from one of his school teachers stating that he had always been a good boy in school and that under the circumstances he would sentence him to life imprisonment in the Mansfield reformatory.

Second Sentenced to Death.

Gackenbach is the second person on whom the death penalty has been imposed from this county. April 15, 1898, Lewis "Bad Eye" Wilkerson, colored, was sentenced to death by Judge J. C. Tobias for the murder of James Woods. After much effort on the part of Attorney John C. McNally who defended Wilkerson, the sentence was changed to life imprisonment on a charge of second degree murder after a second hearing of the case. After serving about fifteen years Wilkerson was pardoned.

MARION CENTENNIAL TO BE OBSERVED IN JULY

Committees Fix July 2, 3, 4 and 5 as Dates.

JULY 4 PROBABLY WILL BE HOMECOMING DAY

Committee Will Confer with Harding at Point Pleasant in April.

Marion's centennial celebration will be conducted July 2, 3, 4 and 5. Dates were definitely fixed at a joint meeting of executive and program committees of the general centennial committee at chamber of commerce headquarters Friday afternoon.

After thorough consideration it was decided that these dates probably will be as acceptable to President Warren G. Harding as any that have been selected. It was stated they probably will be late enough to enable him to close all his affairs preparatory to his Alaskan trip on which he contemplates starting July 10.

To Confer With President.

It was also decided to send a committee to Point Pleasant in April, when President Harding will deliver an address at the celebration of President's Grant's birthday, to confer with him relative to the date most acceptable as "Homecoming" day. This is the day the president has designated as the one on which he would most prefer being in Marion in event of circumstances make it impossible for him to be here for more than one day.

It is the belief of those in charge of the centennial that President Harding will designate July 4 as "Homecoming" day. This will conform very satisfactorily with plans of the program committee to make the first day "Church" day, as July 2 falls on Sunday.

Ernst C. Carl was made chairman of a music committee, with authority to select other assistants to cooperate with him in arranging the musical program to be made a part of the celebration. It is planned to procure cooperation of school children, the Lecture Recital club, bands and all other organizations interested in music.

Select Location.

Public out-door exercises, it was decided, will be held on the grounds of the Central Junior High-school building, Center and Oak streets. It is estimated that 10,000 persons can be assembled here without difficulty. Secretary F. B. Stengel was authorized to obtain permission from the board of education for use of the grounds.

Dr. James W. McMurray was authorized to get in touch with the adjutant general for the purpose of obtaining details from the medical corps and the artillery. The medical detachment will be used for first-aid purposes. It is proposed to have the artillery section fire a 100-gun salute the morning of "Homecoming" day, honoring the birth of Marion, and later a twenty-one gun salute for President Harding.

COUNCIL SABBATH IS OBSERVED FRIDAY

By Congregation of Israel in Temple Rooms.

The council Sabbath was observed Friday evening by the congregation of Israel in the temple rooms in the I. O. O. F. hall. The services were held under the auspices of the local council of Jewish Women and a special musical program was a feature of the evening.

The services were in charge of Henry Streitz. Mrs. George Kleinmaier contributed a vocal number, "The Song of Ruth," and the title of a song by Ernst Carl was "Whither Shall I Flee?" Miss Dorothy Streitz read an article on "Council Activities in the Reconstruction Era." A special collection was taken up which will be used for the purchase of groceries to be given to the Red Cross as a charitable offering in celebration of a holiday next Tuesday.

The children of the Sabbath school will be entertained at a masquerade party, Sunday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Kleinmaier, of south State street.

CHAPTER XII.—Constance receives a package wrapped in a muffler which she recognizes as one Corvet was wearing on the day he went away. It contains a few coins, a watch, and woman's wedding ring. She believes them to have been the property of Corvet, and accepts them as a token of his death. Spearman urges Constance to marry him. She consents, but refuses his demand for an immediate ceremony.

"I've wired to Buffalo," he announced. "The Merchants' exchange, if it itself in existence, must have a record of the presentation of the [illegible]

"Then you'll stay here with us until [illegible] comes?"

"If we get a reply by tomorrow morning, I'll wait till then. If not, I'll ask you to forward it to me. I must see about the trains and get back to Frankfort. I can cross by boat from there to Manitowoc—that will be quickest. We must begin there, by trying to find out who sent the package."

She helped him put the muffler and the other articles into the box; she noticed that the wedding ring was no longer with them. He had taken that, meant it had meant to him all that she had known it must mean. . . .

In the morning she was up very early; but Alan, the servants told her, had risen before she had and had gone out. The morning, after the cool northern night, was chill. She slipped a sweater on and went out on the veranda looking about for him. An iridescent haze shrouded the hills and the bay in it she heard a ship's bell strike [illegible] another struck twice—then [illegible]—and another—and another. The haze thinned as the sun grew [illegible] showing the placid water of [illegible] on which the ships stood dou[illegible] She saw Alan returning, and [illegible] the direction from which [illegible] that he must have been to the [illegible] office, she ran to meet him. She was breathing quickly in her ex[illegible] "Caleb Stafford!" she ex[illegible] that was Captain Staf[illegible] and Ramsdell! They [illegible] Miwaka!"

Alan said.

A [illegible] change had come over him [illegible] he was under emotion [illegible] that he seemed scarcely to [illegible] lest it master him—a leap[illegible] that impulse it was, which [illegible] keep down.

"[illegible] P. Alan?" she asked. [illegible] about the Miwaka? You [illegible] had some reference to it [illegible] house. What was it? [illegible] had there?"

"[illegible]" Alan swallowed and [illegible] and repeated—"the [illegible] in the house that night [illegible] it. He seemed to think I [illegible] that had haunted Mr. Cor[illegible] ghost from the Miwaka; at [illegible] showed out to me that I [illegible] the Miwaka?"

"[illegible] Miwaka! What do you [illegible] Alan? The Miwaka was lost with all her people—officers and crew—no one knows how or where!"

"All except the one for whom the Drum didn't beat!"

"What's that?" Blood pricked in her cheeks. "What do you mean, Alan?"

"I don't know yet; but I think I'll soon find out."

"No; you can tell me more now, Alan. Surely you can. I must know. I have the right to know. Yesterday, even before you found out about this, you knew things you weren't telling me—things about the people you'd been seeing. They'd all lost people on the lakes, you said; but you found out more than that."

"They'd all lost people on the Miwaka!" he said. "All who could tell me where their people were lost; a few were like Jo Papo we saw yesterday, who knew only the year his father was lost; but the time always was the time that the Miwaka disappeared!"

"Disappeared!" she repeated. Her veins were pricking cold. What did he know, what could any one know of the Miwaka, the ship of which nothing ever was heard except the beating of the Indian Drum? She tried to make him say more; but he looked away now down to the lake.

"The Chippewa must have come in early this morning," he said. "She's lying in the harbor; I saw her on my way to the telegraph office. If Mr. Spearman has come back with her, tell him I'm sorry I can't wait to see him."

"When are you going?"

"Now."

She offered to drive him to Potoskey, but he already had arranged for a man to take him to the train.

She went to her room after he was gone and spread out again on her bed the watch—now the watch of Captain Stafford of the Miwaka—with the knife and coins of more than twenty years ago which came with it. The meaning of them now was all changed; she felt that; but what the new meaning might be could not yet come to her. Something of it had come to Alan; that, undoubtedly, was what had so greatly stirred him; but she could not yet reassemble her ideas. Yet a few facts had become plain.

A maid came to say that Mr. Spearman had come up from his boat for breakfast with her and was downstairs. She went down to find Henry lounging in one of the great wicker chairs in the living room. He arose and came toward her quickly; but she halted before he could seize her.

"What's wrong, dear?"

"Alan Conrad has been here, Henry."

"He has? How was that?"

She told him while he watched her intently. "He wired to Buffalo about the watch. He got a reply which he brought to me half an hour ago."

"Yes?"

"The watch belonged to Captain Stafford who was lost with the Miwaka, Henry."

He made no reply; but waited.

"You may not have known that it was his; I mean, you may not have known that it was he who rescued the people of the Winnebago, but you must have known that Uncle Benny didn't."

"Yes; I knew that, Connie," he answered evenly.

"Then why did you let me think the watch was his and that he must be—dead?"

"That's all's the matter? You had thought he was dead. I believed it was better for you—for every one—to believe that."

She drew a little away from him, with hands clasped behind her back, gazing intently at him. "There was some writing found in Uncle Benny's house in Astor street—a list of names of relatives of people who had lost their lives upon the lake. Wassaquam knew where those things were. Alan says they were given to him in your presence. Why didn't you tell me about that?"

He straightened as if with anger. "Why should I? Because he thought that I should? What did he tell you about those lists?"

"Nothing—except that his father had kept them very secretly; but he's found out they were names of people who had relatives on the Miwaka!"

"What?"

Recalling how her blood had run when Alan had told her that, Henry's whiteness and the following suffusion of his face did not surprise her.

"I told that fellow long ago not to start stirring these matters up about Ben Corvet, and particularly I told him that he was not to bring any of it to you. It's not—a thing that a man like Ben covered up for twenty years till it drove him crazy is sure not to be a thing for a girl to know. Let it alone, I tell you."

She stood flushed and perplexed, gazing at him. She never had seen him under stronger emotion.

"You misunderstood me once, Connie," he appealed. "You'll understand me now!"

She had been thinking about that injustice she had done him in her thought—about his chivalry to his partner and former benefactor, when Uncle Benny was still keeping his place among men. Was Henry now moved, in a way which she could not understand, by some other obligation to the man who long ago had aided him? Had Henry hazarded more than he had told her of the nature of the thing hidden which, if she could guess it, would justify what he said?

She had made Alan promise to write her, if he was not to return, regarding what he learned; and a letter came to her on the fourth day from him in Manitowoc. The post office employees had no recollection, he said, of the person who had mailed the package; it simply had been dropped by some one into the receptacle for mailing packages of that sort. Alan, however, was continuing his inquiries.

She wrote to him in reply; in lack of anything more important to tell him, she related some of her activities and inquired about his. After she had written him thus twice, he replied, describing his life on the boats pleasantly and humorously; then, though she immediately replied, she did not hear from him again.

A new idea had seized Constance. Captain Caleb Stafford was named among the lost, of course; with him had perished his son, a boy of three. That was all that was said, and all that was to be learned of him, the boy.

Alan had been three then. This was wild, crazy speculation. The ship was lost with all hands; only the Drum, believed in by the superstitious and the most ignorant, denied that. The Drum said that one soul had been saved. How could a child of three have been saved when strong men, to the last one, had perished? And, if he had been saved, he was Stafford's son. Why should Uncle Benny have sent him away and cared for him and then sent for him and, himself disappearing, leave all he had to—Stafford's son?

Or was he Stafford's son? Her thought went back to the things which had been sent—the things from a man's pockets with a wedding ring among them. She had believed that the ring cleared the mother's name; might it in reality only more involve it? Why had it come back like this to the man by whom, perhaps, it had been given? Henry's words came again and again to Constance: "It's a queer concern you've got for Ben. Leave it alone, I tell you!" He knew then something about Uncle Benny which might have brought on some terrible thing which Henry did not know but might guess? Constance went weak within. Uncle Benny's wife had left him, she remembered. Was it better, after all, to "leave it alone?"

A telegraph envelope addressed to her father was on the table in the hall. A servant told her the message had come an hour before, and that he had telephoned to Mr. Sherrill's office, but Mr. Sherrill was not in. There was no reason for her thinking that the message might be from Alan except his presence in her thoughts, but she went at once to the telephone and called her father. He was in now, and he directed her to open the message and read it to him.

"Have some one," she read aloud; she choked in her excitement at what came next—"Have some one who knew Mr. Corvet well enough to recognize him, even if greatly changed, meet Carferry Number 25 Manitowoc Wednesday this week. Alan Conrad."

Her heart was beating fast. "Are you there?" she said into the phone.

"Yes."

"Whom shall you send?"

There was an instant's silence. "I shall go myself," her father said.

She hung up the receiver. Had Alan found Uncle Benny? He had found, apparently, some one whose resemblance to the picture she had showed him was marked enough to make him believe that person might be Benjamin Corvet; or he had heard of some one who, from the account he had received, he thought might be. She read again the words of the telegram . . . "even if greatly changed;" and she felt startling and terrifying warning in that phrase.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY GOES SAILING.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]

[Copyright 1922, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

"Do you think you will go adventuring today, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Thank you for asking, Nurse Jane, but I hardly think so," answered the bunny rabbit gentleman. "Though the toothache which I had yesterday no longer hurts me, it is so blowy and windy today that I think I had better not go out—that is, unless you want me to go to the store?" he asked politely.

"Oh, no!" exclaimed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "And as long as you are going to be home I think I'll do a little washing. There are some bed sheets that need sozzling in the soap suds."

"And I'll help you hang them out on the line," offered Uncle Wiggily.

"It's very kind of you," said Nurse Jane, "but I'm afraid it's too windy. Your tooth might ache again."

The rabbit gentleman said he hardly thought so, as he wasn't afraid of a little wind. But Nurse Jane told him to sit in his easy chair and read the paper while she washed.

A little later Uncle Wiggily, looking from the window, saw Nurse Jane trying to hang up the washed sheets. The March wind blew under one of the big white pieces of linen as the muskrat lady was hanging it over the line, and almost before Nurse Jane knew it, the sheet turned into a sail like one on a boat and lifted her up off her paws.

"Oh, Wiggily! Help!" cried Nurse Jane. "Don't let me blow away!"

With a bound Uncle Wiggily

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Come back!

sprang from his chair, rushed out and caught hold of Nurse Jane, just as she was sailing off over the fence, being blown by the wind, with the sheet for a sail.

"I grabbed you just in time!" laughed the bunny, as he pulled her back into the yard.

"Yes," agreed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, "I had no idea the wind was so strong. I must use twice as many clothespins to hold the sheets on the line."

With Uncle Wiggily's help the wash was hung out—not a very big wash, just a few sheets—and then Nurse Jane went back in the bungalow to do the sweeping, dusting and baking.

The wind kept on blowing harder and harder, soon drying the sheets and whipping them about on the line so that they boomed and cracked like guns. Nurse Jane was in the kitchen making a cake and Uncle Wiggily was looking from the window at the fluttering sheets on the line when, all of a sudden, the bunny gentleman saw some of the clothespins coming loose and a sheet started sailing away.

"Oh, Nurse Jane! Your sheets will blow away! Your sheets will blow away!" shouted Uncle Wiggily, running to the door. "I'll save them for you! I'll stop them!"

Nurse Jane was put[illegible] in the oven, so she couldn't drop it in a moment, and it was a second or two before she could run out into the yard. When she did she saw something that made her gasp for breath.

Uncle Wiggily had caught hold of the corners of two sheets which were just going to blow away off the line. The rabbit gentleman held tightly to the big white squares of cloth and then, all of a sudden, the wind blew harder than ever, off went the sheets and away went Uncle Wiggily sailing, sailing, sailing!

Up over the fence he went, for he would not let go the sheets, and they were just like the sails of a boat, taking him along. Up, up, up, higher, higher and higher sailed the bunny.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Come back! Come back!" cried Nurse Jane.

"I—I can't!" faint and far away sounded the bunny voice from high in the air.

"Oh, help! Help! Help!" screamed Nurse Jane. "Come on, everybody, Uncle Wiggily is being blown away with my sheets!"

Uncle Booster, the woodchuck; Uncle Butter, the goat, and Grandpa Goosey Gander; the goose gentleman, all came running up, but they could do nothing. It looked as though Uncle Wiggily would be blown away off to the North Pole by the March wind when, all of a sudden, Grandpa Goosey cried:

"The wind is changing! It's blowing back this way! Uncle Wiggily will return safely, never fear!"

They all waited. The bunny, who had been but a speck in the sky as large as a postage stamp, soon loomed about the size of an orange, then he grew as large as a honeydew melon and then like a watermelon. Soon he showed bigger than a washtub and then, all at once, the wind blew him safely down into the yard, where Nurse Jane and his friends waited for him.

"Here are your sheets, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy!" chuckled the bunny, bowing politely and handing them to his housekeeper. "I just took them for a little sail."

"Well, I'm glad the wind brought you back with them," laughed Nurse Jane. "I was quite worried about you!" But everything came out all right.

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"He that by the plough would thrive, himself must either hold or drive."

Naturally, Ambassador Harvey is too thoroughly an American to suit the fellows criticizing him.

"Talk Marion Centennial!" would make a good slogan now.

The statement that American tourists spent $57,000,000 in Canada last year would be more illuminating were it known whether they drank it on the premises or brought it back home with them.

What's the use of the introduction of an efficiency system in the senate, as proposed? It isn't paying dividends, as it is.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year, even with the income tax off, is a pretty big salary, but if Will Hays has to pass on all the movie films put out, maybe it's not a penny too high.

And still they are knocking at our industrial doors, according to a statement by the Marion chamber of commerce. That's the kind of knocking that makes for a return to normal.

The case of Babe Ruth calls attention to the fact that paragraphers are never ostentatious. You never heard of one of them divulging the fact that he had signed a five-year contract at $75,000 a year.

Getting run over by a tin Lizzie may yet be not without a certain distinction. We see that a prominent automobile manufacturer has put an up-to-date, five-passenger car on the market at $348.

Transportation and industrial plants may suffer, but if the present brand of weather continues, the proposed coal strike of April 1 will find the average citizen saying to himself: "I should worry."

Colonel Bryan says he was turned down when he wanted to sign an arms treaty, while he was secretary of state, exactly like the one recently executed in Washington. What possible ground for hope could the colonel have had, at that time, of putting over a treaty without even so much as a hint in it of a super-state?

If we get him correctly, Colonel Bryan will not stand for an ancestor of even so limited a ratio as one part monkey to sixteen parts man.

It's not so surprising that blindness is decreasing as a result of the fact that people are taking better care of their eyes. There never before was so much exhibited to be seen.

There's another advantage the hard-working spreader of joy and sunshine in paragraphs has over the man in high official life. He can pay his income tax without all the newspapers making a news item out of it.

At public auction in Berlin a bust of the former kaiser brought 15,000 marks. Looks like a rather generous figure till one figures out the price in real money.

The Salvation army publication claims there are 1,000,000,000 heathen in the world, but after one sits in a theater in front of one of the nuisances, who put their knees against the back of your chair and rock it throughout a performance, you are inclined to feel that the figures are far too conservative.

Chairman Hull should get Cousin Franklin D. Roosevelt to assist him. As a free-and-easy, extemporaneous claimer, Franklin is in a class by himself.

"Some people naturally will take it that our ecclesiastical friends are knocking the coming Elk charity exposition," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "but no doubt a lot of people versed in the ways of the world will be inclined to figure that they are advertising it."

TO DO AWAY WITH DEFICIENCIES.

The administration will cooperate earnestly with Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee to abolish the ancient practice of departments spending more than congress has allowed them and then beseeching the legislative branch to make up the deficiency. It already has put its hand to the task through the budget bureau and unquestionably will take appropriate action in discouragement of the "deficiency fiend," as Mr. Madden designates individuals in the spending sections of government who "create deficiencies which can not be justified."

No longer can the country regard complacently the contracting of bills for which payment has not been provided in advance, save in exceptional cases of emergency. Several decades ago it did not appear to make much difference whether there were, or were not, such deficiencies for federal revenues almost always exceeded demands upon the treasury. We see now that it was wrong not to insist upon the departments living within their means—the means which congress assigned to them after consideration of their estimates of requirements for carrying on their business. A bad habit was created. It is this which the budget system was designed to cure—the ultimate effect being to put every government activity on a basis absolutely economical.

When the deficiency habit grew up the only embarrassment the treasury felt in consequence of unexpected demands for appropriations was the reduction of its ability to retire the civil war debt. Even that was not serious, since the surplus annually was very large. The present condition demands that the national financiers "cut the coat according to the cloth."

The difficulty today is to find revenues sufficient to meet all demands without overburdening taxpayers. Debt service must be nicely calculated and provided for in the assessment of taxes. A surplus in the old sense is not imaginable. Consequently demands for deficiency appropriations are embarrassing. They will have to be eliminated.

Soon it will be "Clean Up and Paint Up"

In a word, Uncle Sam will be conspicuous for his absence at the Genoa conference, should one ever be held.

Lent is generally accepted as a season of penance, and this may explain how somebody with an eye to the everlasting fitness of things selected March 15 as income tax return day.

Mother used to hurry through with the evening dishes so she could read aloud to her children. Now she either hurries them through or lets 'em wait so she can go to the movies.

No mere man ever understands just exactly how the slim princess turns out to be a fat Fatima.

China may be in a bad way financially, but Lawrence Todnem, Y. M. C. A. secretary at Shantung, who addressed the local Rotary club, surely can not find anything so unusual about that to talk about. About all other nations have joined "poor men's clubs."

A very clever Buckeye paragrapher says "Our friendly and solicitous counsel to our good-natured president, as he enters upon the second year of his great service, is that he sail in now and make a few good enemies," and we wonder if sinners can thus be designated.

SCHOOL YEARS OF YESTERYEAR.

"Our examination has brought to light a great number of interesting and unusual facts which we would fain have generally known, but which can not be detailed here."

W. Watkins, superintendent of the Marion schools, thus closed a report he made to the public as published in the Marion Independent of March 14, 1867. The report, or parts of it, will carry a large measure of interest now, after a lapse of fifty-five years, because almost a column was required to print the names of all the scholars making up the Marion Union school "roll of honor." Those who got their names on the honor roll had to have not only an average of eighty per cent, but they had to be "those who had not been reprimanded for misconduct and who have not been absent or tardy during the month of February."

Many of these pupils of 1867 are long since dead. Many have wandered far afield. Many have attained riches. Many have won success. Many are still honored residents of Marion.

A glance down through this "roll of honor" is like turning back the leaves in some good old book. First comes the "First Primary"—John McMahon, Willis Boyd, Carrol Hardy, Charley Bansinger, Howard Dumble, Irving Dudley and Mary Byers. Next, "Second Primary," with Major Batch, Edward Holmes, Mitchell Strelitz, Henry Kowalke, Willis Ward, Robert Osborne, Harry Conrad, Libbie Davis, Ida Krause, Louis Muntsinger, Marietta Scribner and Flora Reuhrmund. Then the "First Secondary A Class," with Charley Erdlen, John Loffler, Chauncey Davids, Charley Kishler, Clemmie Dorward, Louisa Ruthardt, Mary Martin, Mana Hilman, Cora Reynolds and Emma Cunningham.

Scrawled on the margin of the old Independent, in which this honor roll is carried more than half a century ago and which has been preserved by Mrs. George T. Emerson, of west Center street, appears, "Ten years old, 1867." It was written by Chauncey Davids when he was ten years old. He is now engaged in the oil business for the Standard in Texas after a successful career in railroading in Colorado for more than thirty years. He is a son of John E. Davids, for whom Davids street was named, and a brother of Mrs. Emerson, formerly Libbie Davids.

There are too many names in the honor roll to mention them all here. For the High school, which was then located in the old Central building, where indeed the entire schools were located, the "roll of honor" carried these names:

Charles King, Iva Brockett, Mary Rice, Callie Runyan, Platt King, Ella Irmer, Elwood Baker, William Coffee, Perry Lennox, Mary Wallace, Lucy Crouch, Alice Turney, Frank Dudley, Wilson Williams, Susie Bair, Ella Crickett, Alice Reuhrmund and Effie Jones.

This old "roll of honor" floods memory's gates, not with flotsam or with jetsam, but with the clear, leaping waters of a mountain stream. It is refreshing and delightful.

THE PRELIMINARY ANSWERS.

The series of conferences now being called into session in several of the southern states will never take high place in point of importance. Indeed, it is altogether improbable that any of the world's political leaders will be deeply impressed by anything that may come from these several gatherings. But for untold numbers of people in this country every day of the thirty or forty day sessions which are now beginning will bring news the importance of which is not to be denied. There will be rejoicing if the reports are the right kind, and despair if another kind of report should come from the South.

Neither age nor race will keep any one from being vitally interested in what the conferences are presently to determine. Old and young and middle-aged will turn with interest to each day's report, representatives of every nationality in this country will scan eagerly the page which brings the news. For it is in these conferences in the baseball training quarters in the south that it will be decided whether the stove league predictions were sense or nonsense.

Will the "King of Swat" repeat this year his last year's record? Will this pitcher's arm come back? Has the other gained the control, but for the lack of which last year he might have been the leading pitcher of the league? These are the questions the alleged answers to which will be worked out within a short time now.

And then there are the new recruits, the unknowns, the mysterious personages of baseball in whom we always have so much hope in the spring, and who do not always turn out to be the heroes the stove league forecast made them out to be. There is such a difference between baseball on paper and baseball on the diamond.

THE SAME PROFESSOR HART.

Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of government at Harvard university, was one of the orators on Washington's birthday at Boston. Instead of devoting himself to a eulogy of the great American, in accordance with the spirit that sets aside the day as a public holiday, Professor Hart saw fit to impress upon his auditors the information that Washington had red hair cunningly concealed by a wig, and that "He never learned to accept the canons of spelling, preferring to spell glue 'glew' and window 'winder.'"

This is the same Professor Hart who has written a history textbook for use in our schools, one of the purposes of which is, in the words of the author, to present "adequate treatment of certain topics which hitherto have been too little stressed in the study of American history." The student is told that the colonists "were proud of being Britons," that "they enjoyed more freedom and self-government than the people of England," and of the soldiers of the revolution that "many served from the purest motives of patriotism, but others were drawn into the army by money, bounties, and promises of land."

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

BLINDNESS.

"Ye have a world of light,
Where love in the loved rejoices,
But the blind man's home is the home of night—
And its beings are empty voices."

We pity the blind,
And it is right and proper that we should.

We speak of the undesirability of the blind leading the blind.

But, not infrequently, the blind are safer leaders along the path of duty—with all its pitfalls and dangers—toward the city of service and success, than are those who have two good eyes.

The law of compensation is operative in all things.

Robbed of one or more senses, we the more diligently develop the efficiency and reliability of those remaining.

Those afflicted with physical infirmities often overcome such handicaps.

"This fellow must have a rare understanding;
For nature recompenseth the defects
Of one part with redundance in another;
Blind men have excellent memories, and the tongue,
Tame indisposed, there's treasure in the intellect."

The American magazine contains an article detailing the many successes already achieved by two blind students of the University of North Carolina.

They are Sam Cathey and Buford Warsham.

They are registered as law students; and they stand among the highest in their classes.

Sam started out in life with two good eyes. His home was in Skyland, North Carolina—near Asheville. His father was a contractor; and at the age of nineteen, Sam was working for him. A blast failed to explode. The young man went to ascertain the cause. Suddenly the blast let loose; and young Cathey's sight was destroyed.

After his recovery from the shock, he was sent to the school for the blind, at Raleigh. There he studied and studied four years. In 1919, he entered the freshman class at the University of North Carolina.

Buford was born almost totally blind, in Ruthbend, Virginia. As he grew older his sight failed entirely. When he grew up his parents sent him to the Raleigh school for the blind. He, too, entered the freshman class of the North Carolina university in 1919—along with his friend Sam Cathey.

So there they are today—striving and succeeding—cheerful and determined.

They must have their lessons read to them, of course; but they are favored with keen intellects and good memories.

Buford is a candidate for the coveted key for high scholarship.

Sam is president of one of the leading literary societies.

Both are making good.

Each refuses to consider his handicap; neither knows gloom or discouragement.

Young man, young woman, with no bodily infirmities, with no physical handicaps—what have you to say? Can you succeed—if you will; or can you not?

Wise Women.

A famous medical man of ancient times states regarding his writings that they were but a collection of his wisdom obtained from the "Wise Women."

It is a realize that in those times the women, and not the men, knew of the healing properties of the wild plants, roots and herbs? From the earliest times, women had a knowledge of the treatment of disease and of the healing merit of roots and herbs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was originated by a woman, Lydia E. Pinkham, and is now known and praised by women of all ages. It is prepared from roots and herbs having medicinal action of great value in the treatment of the ills women so often have.—Adv.

Let kiddies romp outdoors

Nothing like fresh air play to build sound, sturdy bodies

Too much coddling — over-heated rooms — too heavy flannels — and lack of outdoor exercise make weaklings in later life; Let the youngsters run outside — in winter as well as summer.

WISE MOTHERS know that daily outdoor exercise in childhood, is the only foundation for strong bodies in later life.

Daily means winter as well as summer.

But, with outdoor exposure, some colds are bound to come.

Must not neglect colds

And we know now that colds are not just "simple" colds.

They must not be neglected.

Much of the catarrh, deafness and ill health of adults is now laid by physicians to the neglected colds of childhood.

Constant dosing harmful

On the other hand, constant internal dosing frequently disturbs the child's digestion.

When the stomach is upset and appetite impaired, the child neither eats nor digests enough food to keep up its strength.

This, in turn, lowers its bodily resistance—invites further colds and other diseases, too.

A druggist solves the problem

This problem has been solved by a North Carolina druggist.

His discovery, Vicks VapoRub, acts like a vapor lamp and also like a liniment or plaster.

It comes in the form of a salve—is applied externally—doesn't disturb digestion—can be used as often and as freely as desired, with perfect safety.

Vapors set free by body heat

This druggist found a new way to combine the old time-tested remedies for colds—Camphor, Menthol, Turpentine and other valued ingredients.

This salve is so made that when applied over throat and chest these ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

Inhaled with each breath, these vapors carry the medication directly to the parts affected—that is, the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time, Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin like a liniment, poultice or plaster.

Grandma's method brought up to date

The value of external applications for colds, particularly those of children, has long been recognized.

In the days when grandma was the family doctor, goose grease mixed with camphor and turpentine was the favorite remedy.

Then came camphorated oil and vapor lamps. Vicks goes a long step further.

Colds should be treated directly

Colds are simply inflammations of the mucous membrane that lines the air passages and lungs and should be treated just as we treat surface inflammations, such as boilses or burns.

The medication should be applied directly to the inflamed parts.

But the air passages can only be reached with vapors that can be inhaled. And until the discovery of Vicks there was no convenient or economical method of supplying these vapors.

A household reliance

This treatment is a boon to mothers.

Used immediately after exposure it helps to prevent children's colds.

Applied at bedtime it is a safeguard against spasmodic croup.

It works quickly in sore throat, head colds and chest colds.

THE MOTHER'S PROBLEM

Growing children need outdoor exercise.
With outdoor exposure comes colds.
Serious results often follow neglected colds.
But too constant dosing for colds is also harmful.
To those mothers who haven't satisfactorily solved this problem, this message is directed.

Good for grown-ups, too

Vicks is just as good for grown-ups, too—for tonsilitis, quinsy, deep chest colds, catarrh, bronchitis and asthma.

Its penetrative and rubefacient action makes it useful every day, also, for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, boils, itching skin troubles, chapped skin, chilblains and sprains.

For any troubles, in fact, where there is inflammation or congestion.

How Vicks should be used

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds—Rub Vicks over the throat [and] chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bed time usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest—if necessary, first using hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin—then rubbed in well until the skin is red; spread on thickly and covered with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, swallow small pieces the size of a pea.

Vapors important

When Vicks is applied over the throat and chest, the bed-covering and clothing should always be left loose around the neck in the form of a funnel. As the body heat releases the ingredients, vapors arise from the chest application. To get the fullest effect from Vicks these vapors should be freely inhaled.

Insist upon Kellogg's the original Corn Flakes —they're wonderful

"Say, Mazie, I hope we don't have any bites while we're eating Kellogg's Corn Flakes, 'cause I like Kellogg's so much that the fish will get away!"

Kellogg flavor and Kellogg crispness are so different that there can be no comparison between Kellogg's Corn Flakes and imitations.

Little folks quickly say, "Get Kellogg's, Mother—please," because Kellogg's are never tough or leathery or hard to eat! Kellogg's are always so delicious that big bowls quickly disappear and eager little mouths appeal for more! And big folks appreciate the superiority of Kellogg's because their flavor is so inviting. Kellogg's are wonderful!

Insist upon Kellogg's—the kind in the RED and GREEN box that bears the signature of W. K. Kellogg, originator of Kellogg's Corn Flakes. NONE ARE GENUINE WITHOUT IT!

JUBILEE'S PARDNER

by Judd Mortimer Lewis

Illustrations by Edwins

When I woke up this morning there was not a cloud in the sky, and I felt good while I was letting Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, because he had got good and dry and if it would not rain all day he would be dry tonight, and it feels kinda good to have a dry dog to sleep with when a fella has been sleeping with a wet dog every night for a week.

When I am grown up I am going to have Jubilee in the house every night by the fire, and then he will be dry and warm, too, by the time it is time to go to bed, because I will set up till the middle of the night every night, and probly smoke about a box of cigars every night and spit wherever I feel like it. I can not smoke yet, but I will probly learn. I have almost learnt two or three times, but just as I got about learnt something made me sick, so I have to start all over. I have give up trying for a while. There will always be cigars to practice on when I get ready so what is the use in being in a hurry about it.

When I had milked and cleaned the stable, and had got over to the brickyard the sun was shining, and the flat clayey place where they dry bricks in summer was unfroze and soft so that a fella would go in it almost to the tops of his boots. I throwed a stick as far as I could and when Jubilee come back with it he was plastered. Then I had an idea and I jumped out in it as far as I could and then I took short steps and made a "T," and then I jumped in a place for a period, and jumped again and made a "A" and a period, and again and made "B" and then I would of been all right but when I jumped to make a period both of my feet slipped and I made a big one with the seat of my pants, so that I had to jump back and make them all alike. Then Nibs dasted me to take off my clothes and fall backwards in it like we do in the snow and make an image, and I done it and almost busted myself because when a fella falls back flat in the mud he gets an awful slap all over. Then two of them took my hands and pulled me up and I went to the mudhole and got most of it off and we all got to school on time.

When school was out we took Skunk around there and showed it to him, and he said if I would get nekked he would cover me up with mud and then I could go and stand in our front yard and he would tell my mother to come out and look at the statute he had made of her son. We all caught him and almost rubbed his hair off giving him the Dutch rub to see what was the matter with his head. He must think I am an easy mark, the bonehead.

I told my mother I fell in the mud on the seat of my pants and she said the dirt would shake out all right when it was dry, and my father said to go and fall into bed for a change. He will not think he is so funny when we are getting antimony from him.

With Tea or Coffee

It is really surprising what new zest these crisp, tender crackers give to tea or coffee. Yet not so surprising when you consider their unusual goodness. N. B. C. FLAKE BUTTER CRACKERS are round, flaky crackers with a wee pinch of salt which adds to their taste and the taste of other food. Have them on the table at every meal. They blend harmoniously with every course. Ask for them by name. Sold by the pound.

Calumet is made under such exacting conditions — packed in such a scientific manner, that its leavening strength and purity never vary. It retains its original strength for months after leaving the factories.

When you tip the can to get the last spoonful, you know your baking will turn out all right—the last spoonful is the same as the first. This uniform quality of is cause for its big demand. Housewives know they can depend upon the results obtained—that climatic conditions or temperature cannot deteriorate its positive leavening power.

When you buy baking powder remember these facts—that a uniform leavener means bakings that do not vary in quality—that Calumet is uniform.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a lb. when you want it.

Physical suffering of the intensest kind, accompanied by phenomena seldom, if ever, before developed, has resulted from the thoughtless and unauthorized use of the toxic poison by a laboratory assistant in a spirit of experiment.

Professor Cole is in the department of American history of Ohio State university and his wife is a teacher in the public schools.

The injections were made in January, and it will require several months more before a complete cure is effected. Inflammation of the arms and partial paralysis followed the injections in each case.

BROOKLYN ROOKIES SHOW UP FINELY

Ebbetts Declares Them Best He Has Known.

LIST OF PLAYERS AN IMPRESSIVE ONE

Every One of Them Wins Distinction on the Diamond in Recent Years.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 10.—"The best looking bunch of rookies the Brooklyn ball club ever took north," Charles H. Ebbets, speaking. "For forty years," he exclaims with unblushing candor, "I have been watching ball clubs train. I have seen championship teams develop under my eye in a single season but never before have I seen such a promising lot of recruits."

Conversation and Mr. Ebbetts are not total strangers, we grant you. He has been known, in fact, as a free talker, which may be described as a conversational half brother of vers libre, yet he speaks now as the president of a ball club that has seen many great ball players come and go, first as an obscure rookie, then as an acclaimed star. Few of its luminaries have been bought ready made. It is a club that rolls its own, as the saying goes.

Impressive List.

Its list of home made ball players is impressive. Consider for example, Nap Rucker, one of the greatest left hand pitchers of all time, Zack Wheat, one of the league's leading outfielders for some years, and Jake Daubert, a rival of Hal Chase at first base in his early career. Other Brooklyn products include Hi Myers, outfielder, Jimmy Johnston, third baseman, Sherrod Smith, left hand pitcher, George Cutshaw, second baseman, and Casey Stengel, outfielder.

Burleigh Grimes, pretty generally considered the best right-hander in the National league, might also be said to have bloomed under the kindly patronage of the benign squire. Burleigh was tossed in for good measure in a Brooklyn-Pittsburgh trade and never showed anything but good intentions until he began to labor in the vineyard of the Dodgers.

Bert Griffith, obtained from New Orleans, is one of the best outfield prospects of a generation. Bert seems to have a habit of smiting the ball with enthusiasm and a baseball bat. Also he is somewhat of a hurried person on the base paths, having stolen more than fifty bases in the Southern association last year.

Andy High, an infielder who hit .326 with Memphis in 1921, is another young man who kindles a gleam in the squire's wintry eye. They are regarded as the best prospects in the camp.

Sam Crane, ex-Red, ex-Mackman, ex-Senator and ex-everything, is expected to settle down long enough to play shortstop, Olson thus being shifted to second base. That takes care of the infield. The pitchers are plentiful also good and Wheat, Myers and either of the Griffiths, Tom or Bert, will complete the outfield.

To Lift Burden.

Behind the bat, Mr. Ebbetts has taken unto himself, Barney Hungling and Hank Deberry and the chances are that Barney and Hank will lift the burden off the veteran shoulders of Otto Miller and Zack Wheat. They have been showing so much to date that Miller and Taylor have been forced to take it out in thinking.

The recruit pitchers are many and promising, the more prominent being Ray Gardinier, a right-hander from Buffalo, Harry Shriver, so tall that the boys think he is dropping them down from the third floor, Clarence Brown, Dazzy Vance, Arthur Decatur, Roy Auer and A. Dell, right-handers, and Charley Hackett, Sam Post and Bill Bishop, left-handers.

Vance is the same Dazzy who has been up and down from the big show as often as a [illegible] annoys the tonsils, which is ample, sufficient and enough.

Speaks Highly of This Home Made Cough Remedy

Says It Acts With Unusual Speed—Loosens the Mucus—Relieves the Irritation and Stops the Cough.

Costs Next To Nothing—for a Big Supply.

Whenever anyone in my family catches cold and begins to cough and sneeze, and hawk and breathe hard, it doesn't take me many minutes to fix up a remedy that will drive away all such troubles in double quick time.

It's no secret—anyone can mix a half pint of the finest cough medicine in the world for a trifling cost.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make half pint—that's all there is to it.

But now you've got a real medicine—mind you—the best spoonful you take acts directly on the membrane of the throat and nose, the tickling ceases almost instantly—the inflammation begins to disappear—up comes the stubborn mucus and often in 24 hours every trace of the cough that frightened you is gone.

It's really remarkable how this home made remedy acts on the mucous membrane and that is one reason it is so helpful to thousands of catarrh sufferers.—Adv.

Cold! Lumbago, Or Stiff Back

Old St. Jacobs Oil will stop pain and stiffness in a few moments

Ah! Pain is gone! St. Jacobs Oil acts almost like magic.

Quickly?—Yes. Almost instant relief from soreness, stiffness, lameness and pain follows a gentle rubbing with St. Jacobs Oil.

Rub this soothing, penetrating oil right on your painful back, and relief comes. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless backache, lumbago and sciatica liniment which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin.

Straighten up! Quit complaining! Stop those torturous stitches. In a moment you will forget that you ever had a weak back, because it won't hurt or be stiff or lame. Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist now and get this lasting relief.—Adv.

DRINK YOUR COLD AWAY

Drink your cold away—wash the cold germs out of your system. This is the only sure way to get rid of the cold.

Add a tablespoon of plain, ordinary powdered largal to a quart of lemonade and drink a glassful every hour for five or six hours. Do this today—and tomorrow your cold will be gone.

Medicines that merely suppress a cold are dangerous, as the cause is still left in the blood. The success of the largal treatment is due to the fact that the accumulated poisons caused by the cold germs, are carried off through the kidneys, bowels and the secretions of the skin, bringing quick, lasting relief.

Contains no quinine, opiates, aspirin or other harmful drugs. Can be taken with perfect safety by children as well as adults.

You can get powdered largal at all druggists. It costs but little and never fails to break the worst cold.—Adv.

LODGE TO FORCE VOTE ON PACT

Will Compel Test of Strength in Senate.

AIM IS TO DISPOSE OF LATEST RESERVATION

Latter Framed by Robinson, of Arkansas.

Reservation Regarded as a Reflection of the League of Nations Idea—Would Protect China from Japanese.

Washington, March 11.—It was [illegible] a plan to force a [illegible] in the senate today on the [illegible] efforts being made by opponents of the four-power treaty to amend it textually, or attach reservations to it which the administration does not want.

The Republican leader intended to compel a test of strength between the friends of the pact and its supporters by insisting upon a final vote on the pending reservation sponsored by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, a Democratic leader of the opposition, even though it were necessary to hold a night session.

Reflection of League.

The Robinson reservation is regarded as a reflection of the league of nations idea. Its chief purpose is to provide for a general conference of all nations "claiming an interest" in any controversy which may arise between the four powers—the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan—signatory to the four-power treaty, and other nations not parties to it.

It would prevent the four powers from merely holding a conference of their own "in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly or separately," by them to meet the exigencies of a particular situation in the region of the Pacific in case the situation involved other nations.

The reservation also provides that the four powers will respect the rights and possessions of all other nations and refrain from all acts of aggression against any or all of them.

The latter provision, Senator Robinson said, would clearly stipulate that Japan, for instance, should refrain from further acts of aggression against either China or Russia.

It was understood that the reservation has received the approval of former Under Secretary of State Norman H. Davis and other well known Democrates who reflect the known opposition of former President Wilson to the four-power pact.

Majority Needed.

Only a majority vote is necessary to reject a reservation proposed to a treaty under the senate rules and Senator Lodge proposed to bring about the defeat of all or any reservations, except the Harding-Brandegee "no alliance" reservation adopted by a majority of the senate foreign relations committee. He and Senator Underwood are clinging to their prediction that the treaty will be ratified despite the announced intentions of many Democratic senators to vote against it unless reservations favored by them are attached to it.

[illegible] faced another severe test of his leadership today when he delivered a carefully prepared speech in an effort to meet the storm of criticism directed against the [illegible] pact by an increasing number of his Democratic colleagues.

Underwood Defends Pact.

Washington, March 11. — Not the [illegible] of battleships nor the [illegible] decreed by the armament [illegible] but the four-power [illegible] the real guarantee [illegible] peace, Senator Underwood, Democratic leader of [illegible] and a member of the American delegation, declared [illegible] defense of the pact.

"The treaty is remarkable, [illegible] the first time in the world nations have [illegible] to limit their armaments. Nevertheless, their relative [illegible] remains the same," he said. "The treaties establish a [illegible] to protect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of [illegible] the future.

"The four-power treaty is the one [illegible] for peace by mutual understanding and all that peace [illegible]

Replies to Criticism.

Referring to statement that the [illegible] accomplishment of the conference [illegible]

HERE'S THE "LOVE NEST" OF MATHILDE M'CORMICK AND MAX OSER OVER AT GENEVA

Oser's Riding Academy.

Miss Mathilde McCormick

Cartoon of Max Oser drawn by himself.

The riding academy of Max Oser was the "love nest" where the Zurich riding master proposed to Mathilde McCormick, sixteen-year-old daughter of Harold F. McCormick, Chicago "harvester king," and granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller. It was here, while taking riding lessons from Oser that the youthful American heiress learned to love Max and became engaged to him. The group shows a cartoon of Oser, drawn by himself, with an inset of Miss McCormick, his bride.

AGED COUPLE GETS LICENSE TO WED

Cincinnati, March 11.—One is never too old to wed, declared Fermine Andrews, seventy-six, retired lawyer, when he applied for a license to marry Mrs. Anna Stephens, seventy-eight. Andrews buried two wives and Mrs. Stephens buried two husbands.

CALLS UP BROTHER; KILLS HERSELF

Hamilton, March 11. — Deanna Gabbard, 20, shot and killed herself late last night after telephoning to her brother. The girl placed the trigger of a shotgun against a nail, the charge striking her in the heart. Illness was given as the cause of her act.

RISING RIVER FLOODS CITY

Nashville Homes and Stores Are Inundated.

RIVER MAY REACH A STAGE OF FIFTY FEET

A Miniature Tornado Sweeps Through Kentucky Town, Damaging Many Buildings.

Nashville, Tenn., March 11.—Rising steadily at the rate of an inch an hour, the Cumberland river early today reached a stage of 44.7 feet, inundating lowlands, railway yards, and basements of warehouses along the river banks.

Due to continued rainfall in northern Tennessee and the Ohio valley, the water has passed the high water mark of last spring and threatens to reach the high record of fifty feet, established several years ago.

Tornado in Kentucky.

Cincinnati, March 11.—A miniature tornado swept through Dry Ridge, Grant county, Kentucky, thirty miles south of Cincinnati this morning, unroofing the Baptist church and damaging several other buildings.

The building occupied by the Beckler Undertaking establishment was moved several feet.

An automobile driven by Harry Abernethy was wrecked when struck by a barrel blown from Tom Bishop's barn.

Cumberland River Floods City.

Nashville, Tenn., March 11.—The Cumberland river has reached a point two feet above flood stage here. Basements of warehouses along the river are flooded and the water had reached the second floor of the terminal building. Predictions are that the river will continued to rise and scores of business houses are considered in danger.

SAY WART CUTS SHORT LIFE OF MAN, 102

Burlingham, March 11. — The two sisters and a brother—all over 90 years of age—of the late George P. Wallace, who died recently at the age of 102 years, declared their aged brother's career was cut short because he irritated a wart on the back of his hand. Through continual rubbing, they declared, Wallace caused a cancer to develop from the wart.

PRESIDENT AT ORMOND BEACH

Plays Eighteen Holes of Golf with Friends.

BALMY WEATHER IS ORDER OF THE DAY

Houseboat Goes Through Mantansas Canal Before Dark and Anchors in River.

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 11. — President Harding arrived here this morning and played eighteen holes of golf with Speaker Gillett, E. B. McLean and Under Secretary of State Fletcher.

Threatening weather which earlier had promised to upset the day's plans, gave way to a balmy clear day and the president enjoyed his morning to the fullest.

Goes Through Canal.

Daytona, Fla., March 11.—The houseboat Nahemoka, with the presidential party aboard, was expected to dock here early this morning. For the first time since the start of his vacation, President Harding has encountered bad weather, but unless the rain increases, the president will play eighteen holes of golf over the Sea Breeze club course.

Arriving earlier than was expected at Mantansas inlet yesterday afternoon, it was found possible to go through the canal before dark, so plans for docking at the entrance over night were changed and the boat was sent through.

The houseboat was anchored "somewhere" in the Halifax river last night.

The president's plans beyond this morning have not been yet disclosed.

Notorious Bandit Sought.

New York, March 11.—One of the most notorious bandits of the middle west, who at various times has been known as Henry J. Fernekes, Jimmie Knight and C. F. Richards, is being sought for the robbery of the First National bank of Pearl River, New York, in which two clerks were shot to death on December 19, last, it was learned today from circulars distributed by a private detective agency.

Jealous, Kills Negro Mate.

Cincinnati, March 11.—Mrs. Margaret Elliott, twenty-two, late last night shot and killed Stanley Elliott, thirty-four, her negro husband. She told police she was jealous of him.

COURTS MAY TAKE ACTION

To Compel the Mine Operators To Meet Workers.

WOULD BE IN FORM OF A MANDAMUS ORDER

Believed, However, Davis' Plea Will Be Heeded.

Various Moves of Secretary Are Heartily Approved by President, Who Believes They Will Be Successful in End.

Washington, March 11—Court proceedings to compel the soft coal operators to join the miners in a conference to discuss a new wage scale, may be resorted to in order to break the deadlock now existing among the operators, it was stated in official quarters today.

Such proceedings would be in the form of a mandamus order issued by a federal judge which would compel the operators to abide by the 1920 pact which specifically provides that the two groups hold a conference before April 1, 1922, in order to adjust any difference that may exist between them.

Injunction May Be Invoked.

"The injunction has been successfully used against organized labor and labor may invoke it to avert the coal strike threatened for April 1," a government official declared today.

It was believed, however, by those in close touch with the strike situation that Secretary of Labor Davis' urgent plea to the operators to agree to a conference would be heeded without resort to court action.

"There will be no strike on the part of the miners but merely a suspension of work if a new wage scale is not agreed upon before April 1," John Moore, a member of the legislative committee of the United Mine Workers, said today.

Government officials handling the coal strike situation, said that the plan of the miners to "suspend work" rather than to strike, would injunctions being issued against the miners, to tying up their funds and curtailing their activities.

Moore is in Washington as the personal representative of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and is conferring with Secretary Davis. He said that miners were ready to enter into a conference with the operators and he expressed the belief that the proposed conference would be eventually brought about by Secretary Davis.

Confident of Success.

In the belief that the operators need the mine workers' union as much as the union needs the support of the operators, officials handling the strike situation felt confident today that the strike menace would be averted. The various moves made by Secretary Davis to bring about a conference have been heartily approved by President Harding and the labor secretary is confident his efforts to prevent a suspension of coal mining will be crowned with success.

Reiterates Statement.

Davis reiterated today his statement that "the government has no desire to interfere unduly, but having not only the interests of the employers and employes in mind, it also has a duty to safeguard the interests of the people, who will be seriously affected by a coal strike."

"The present agreement between

BANDITS SHOOT MAN AND STEAL $30,000

Hold Up a Trolley Car and Rob Fifty Passengers.

Brownsville, Pa., March 11. — Six bandits held up an interurban car of the West Pennsylvania Traction company, three miles east of here, just before 10 o'clock today, frisked the fifty passengers, including twelve women, and escaped with $30,000 cash which was being taken by three employes of the W. J. Rainey Coal company to its mine at Allison, Pennsylvania.

Elmer Hill, a special officer of the coal company, was shot through the upper part of the body. After relieving the passengers of all available valuables, the bandits jumped off the car and escaped in a waiting automobile, parked near the scene of the holdup.

To Build Parcel-Post Depot.

Cincinnati, March 11.—Construction of a large parcel-post depot to cost approximately $1,250,000 will be started here immediately by the government. The building will be across the street from the union station and will be used as what might be called a clearing house for parcel post packages coming into and going out of middle western cities.

TO SERVE 1,666 DAYS FOR DRY LAW BREACH

St. Clairsville, March 11. — For the first time in the history of Belmont county, a man has been sent to a workhouse to serve out a fine for violating prohibition laws. Pete Zalinski, Fairpoint, will work out a $1,000 fine in the Zanesville workhouse at the rate of sixty cents a day. He pleaded guilty to possessing intoxicants following a raid during which a still was found.

NO CHANGE IN PLAN FOR BONUS

Despite the Objections of the Treasury Officials.

FORDNEY REFUSES TO DISCUSS ATTACKS

Believes Treasury Opinion Is Not Unanimous.

Governor Harding Says That the Banks Can Make All the Loans on Certificates Without Much Inconvenience.

Washington, March 11.—There is to be no change in the plans of the soldier bonus legislation because of opposition of treasury officials or because of reports that President Harding disapproves of the bill, in its present form, Chairman Fordney, of the house ways and means committee, declared today.

The bill, according to the schedule worked out by Republican leaders, will be brought from the committee unchanged and will be passed by the house without alteration.

Fordney would not discuss the attack by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger and others connected with the treasury, on the proposed legislation. He thinks, however, that there exists a sharp difference of opinion among treasury officials as to the effect of the bill upon the money situation as applied to banks.

Harding Says Plan Feasible.

Governor W. P. G. Harding, of the federal reserve board, told the Republican members of the ways and means committee when he consulted with them over the ability of banks to loan money on the bonus certificates that the member banks had borrowed at that time, only $700,000,000 from the federal reserve banks.

This aggregate of loans to member banks is very low.

It was understood to have been the judgment of Governor Harding that the banks could make all the loans on bonus certificates to which they might be subjected without inconveniencing their commercial borrowers and without interfering with the profitable functioning of the banks. In fact it has been stated that demands for cash from business are so light that the banks have been forced to turn to offerings of foreign short term paper to take up their idle money.

Postponement of action by the full ways and means committee from today until Monday on the bonus bill will not delay action on it by the house, Fordney said.

Unless present plans change, the bill will not be called up in the house for passage before Monday, March 20. Support for the present bill is growing steadily.

House Body Makes Drastic Army Proposals.

WANTS SOLDIERS IN CHINA BROUGHT BACK

Reduction of Forces in Canal Zone and Hawaii.

House Approves Dropping of Inefficient Army Officers Soon. Refusal of Rhine Claim Is Not Being Anticipated.

Washington, March 11. — The house military appropriations committee proposes congressional action, by specific limitations upon army appropriations, ordering the withdrawal of American troops assigned on foreign service.

It proposes that congress shall compel the war department to make retrenchments including:

Return home of all American troops from Germany by July 1.

Return home of all American troops from China; reduction of the garrison at Hawaii by one-half.

Substantial reduction of the garrison at Panama.

These proposals will precipitate in a more clear cut and definite manner than ever before in American history the issue of whether the executive branch of the federal government—the president as commander in chief acting through his war department—or the congress, which has sole control of appropriations for national expenditures, has final jurisdiction over the disposition of troops.

Approves Dropping Officers.

Washington, March 11. — The house military affairs committee today gave its approval to the measure sanctioned by the war department calling for "weeding out" of least efficient officers in the United States army.

The committee sent the bill to the house. An attempt will be made to secure house action early next week.

The bill would create a "plucking board" to eliminate officers of higher ranks not up to the war department's efficiency standard. It would bring the officer personnel down to 13,000 men.

Would Be Extraordinary.

Washington, March 11.—The intention of the United States to collect the $241,000,000 for compensation for keeping the American army of occupation on the Rhine was expressed with vigor at the state department today in the face of reports from Paris that the finance ministers were not disposed to grant priority to the American claim.

For the allied ministers to turn down this claim would be one of "the most extraordinary things that ever happened," a high state department official said.

New Interpretation.

Paris, March 11.—America's demand that the expense of maintaining the American army of occupation in the Rhine be paid first out of the German reparations consti-

INDIAN LEADER TO BE TRIED

Arrest of Mahatma Ghandi New Step in Crisis.

ACTION IS TAKEN AS REVOLT THREATENS

Washington Representative Sees Rebellion.

Declares Arrest of Leader Will Precipitate an Open Revolt. General Stoppage of Business To Result from Act.

London, March 11.—The government, fearing disorders in India, following the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the non-cooperationists, today ordered that the Indian government take full precautions to preserve peace. Thus far there have been no disturbances.

The India office has been instructed to try Gandhi at the earliest possible moment on the general charge of sedition.

It is probable that the trial will be held before both a native judge and jury.

Official despatches from India indicate that so far no disorders have occurred following the arrest of the non-cooperationist.

Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of the nationalist movement in India, is the central figure of the remarkable "pacifist revolution" which has stirred the 313,000,000 people of the Indian empire as perhaps never before since the days of the Sepoy mutiny.

He has been called a philosophic anarchist, a new Tolstoi. He became more dominant than ever in the campaign against British rule in India when in December last, the Indian national congress in its annual session at Ahmedabad invested him with sole executive powers of that congress with authority to appoint his successor "in any emergency."

The congress voted to suspend all other activities in order to concentrate upon civil disobedience, a feature of which was the enlistment in the national volunteer corps, but included also refusal to pay taxes and an attempt to boycott British goods.

Sends Manifesto.

Soon after the congress adjourned Gandhi sent a manifesto to Lord Reading, the viceroy, offering to abandon aggressive plans provided the government set free his his followers, many hundreds of whom were in prison, and provided the press was released from administrative control and fines and forfeitures were restored.

The British India office promptly announced that it would not discuss such demands and that it intended to adopt stern measures to suppress the campaign of civil disobedience. It had been persistently charged in Great Britain that the government feared to arrest Gandhi.

Will Mean Open Revolt.

Washington, March 11.—The arrest of Ghandi, the Indian cooperationist leader, by the British, will result in the outbreak of the long smouldering rebellion in India, it was predicted here today by Saileudra N. Ghose, head of the Indian self-government mission in this country.

"The arrest of Ghandi will be followed immediately," Ghose said, by a general hartal or stoppage of all business, and will include a strike of all domestic servants employed by the British."

The arrest of Ghandi will not handicap the progress of India's march toward self-government, Ghose said.

Nationalist leaders completed plans a month ago, he said, for "carrying on" without the leader.

Troops Fire on Rebels.

London, March 11.—Indian police today fired on a force of 2,000 Bhil tribesmen in the state of Rajputana, killing twenty and wounding twenty-nine, according to a dispatch from India.

Surprised at Action.

Calcutta, India, March 11.—Indian moderates were surprised and shocked today when news of the resignation of E. S. Montagu as secretary of India became general. There is great unrest. So far there is no confirmation of the report that Mahtma Gandhi, leader of the non-cooperationists, has been arrested.

Bomb Kills Workers.

London, March 11.—A bomb from an aeroplane which struck and shattered a hall at Benoni, South Africa, today, killed a number of the striking miners who were holding a meeting within, according to a dispatch from Johannesburg.

TO TAKE ACTION ON TRADE PLOTS

America To Combat Attempt at Discrimination.

AGAINST NATIONALS IN NEAR-EAST TRADE

Diplomatic Pressure Is To Be Invoked.

American Chamber of Commerce of the Levant Believes Participation in the Genoa Meet Is Vital to Interests.

Washington, March 11. — Diplomatic pressure is the means the United States will use to combat any anti-American policies the forthcoming allied conference on Near-Eastern affairs may adopt, it was learned today.

This means that the United States will not participate in the conference of allied premiers, despite the appeals of American business men in the Near-East, who assert they are being discriminated against by British, French and Italians with the full connivance of their respective foreign offices.

Though the date of the conference has been set for March 22, this government has not yet received an invitation to participate. This fact is not the real deterrent, however, as it is well known that a hint to the allied premiers could scarcely be disregarded if this government cared to make it.

Against Meddling in Politics.

The basic reason for non-participation is the same as that which prompted the rejection of the invitation to the Genoa conference, namely, the unwillingness of the administration to take part in foreign discussions of a political nature.

Nevertheless, it is freely admitted many matters of interest to the United States are likely to be discussed when the premiers get together. The ostensible object of the conference is to determine upon a near-eastern policy for Great Britain, France and Italy but it is believed the question of modification of the Sevres treaty will also come up for discussion.

The American chamber of commerce of the Levant believes it vital that the United States should participate on a basis of exact equality in any discussions looking to modification of the Sevres treaty. There are difficulties in the way of such participation, however, not the least of which is the fact that the United States was never at war with Turkey and therefore was not a signatory of the Sevres treaty.

Reduces Discount Rate.

Paris, March 11.—The bank of France today reduced its discount rate one-half of one per cent. to five per cent.

RINEHART LUCKIES DEFEAT SHAMROCKS

Fostoria Midgets Fail To Arrive. Luckies Claim Title in Sixteen-Year-Old Class.

[BY HAROLD GLEESPEN.]

The St. Mary's High-school basketball five subdued the St. Rose five of Lima, Friday evening at the armory by a score of twelve to ten. The contest was witnessed by a large crowd and was the most exciting game of the season for the locals.

Makes Sensational Basket.

The contest was hard-fought from start to finish. Korte, the local center, made the most sensational basket of the game while lying on the floor, but the referee's whistle sounded before the ball dropped through the hoop. The first basket of the game was made by the visitors. All during the first half the visitors exhibited some fast team work and the Marion squad was off color, missing many easy shots. McFarland made all of the points for the locals in the first half, which ended with a score of five and five.

It was some time before a point was made for either side in the second half. After the visitors took the lead the locals woke up and the real battle started. Wells was the best man the Lima team had on the floor.

In the preliminary contest the Rinehart Luckies conquered the Shamrocks by a score of fourteen to eight. The Fostoria Midgets failed to arrive. At the end of the first half the score stood six to two in favor of the Luckies. The Luckies are claiming the championship of the sixteen-year-old class.

HARDING HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS PRESENT PLAY

Tarkington Comedy To Be Repeated Tonight.

Members of the senior and junior classes of the Harding High school presented "Clarence," a comedy by Booth Tarkington, Friday evening at the Central Junior High-school auditorium. There was little of the usual home-talent blunders of the amateur production. The play was directed by Miss Lucille Foreman and the cast had been well drilled. It will be repeated tonight.

The play deals with a returned soldier who enters the household of a big business man as a secretary and finds there nothing but petty troubles and quarrels. The son and daughter have what they both believe to be violent love affairs and the wife is jealous of the daughter's governess, whom she believes to be stealing her husband's affection. Through the efforts of Clarence, the soldier, aided by the governess, the family affairs are straightened out and the soldier and Violet Pinney, the governess, find themselves in love.

Violet Pinney, adored by the masculine half of the home and hated by the feminine half, was the character that won the hearts of the audience. In trying to keep peace in the Wheeler home, she is misunderstood by Mrs. Wheeler and is subject to a number of violent attacks. But, finally, with the aid of Clarence, Frank Barnhill, her cause wins out.

The most interesting bits of character acting were the portrayals of the two children, Bobby and Cora. Mildred Trout as Cora, brought down the house with her perfect picture of school-girl love. Elmon Starr played the companion part to this so well that it was one of the brightest spots in the play. The jealous wife, played by Nona Sparks, could not have been more realistic.

The high-school orchestra, directed by Herbert Copp, played a prelude and several numbers between acts.

To Shatter Records.

New York, March 11. — Records are expected to be shattered tonight at the annual indoor championship meeting of the intercollegiate association of amateur athletes of America which is to be held in the 22nd engineers armory here. Dartmouth is sending sixty-eight athletes, Cornell, sixty-five, and Pennsylvania, fifty-three. Penn State has sent an exceptionally strong team. W. A. Comins, the sensational Yale sprinter, is entered with the Yale freshman team in the relay race.

UNDERHAND DELIVERY USED BY JOHNSON

Player Always Delivers from Below Knee.

JOHNSON FAR FROM A DEAD ONE, SAYS GRIFFITH

Comeback Makes Washington Look Very Sweet Indeed in American League Race.

Tampa, Fla., March 11.—Walter Johnson is to use an underhand delivery this year. Further than that, he always has used one, according to the unimpeachable authority of Mr. Clark Griffith.

"Yes sir," quoth Mr. Griffith in conversation with the writer last night, "very few men know it but Johnson always delivered the ball from below his knee. "Except," he amended hastily, "last season."

"It was perhaps the worst he had in the big league and I know the answer. He was throwing them up from the shoulder which was not his natural delivery. Therefore his fast one lacked the old zip.

Not a Dead One.

"They have been counting on Johnson as a dead one. Nothing could be more absurd. He injured his arm in the spring of 1920 pitching an exhibition game at Roanoke, Virginia, on a cold day. He wasn't much use to us that year and last season he started pitching overhand so his arm wouldn't subjected to the snap of the side arm delivery. You see how he went in the last of the season. He had returned to the old style by that time and he was beating them all. Make no mistake, Johnson will be there this year. He is only thirty-four years and everyone knows how long Cy Young and Matty lasted. They didn't take any better care of themselves than Walter does."

The comeback, if true, makes Washington look very sweet indeed in the American league race. Mr. Griffith, himself, if harried beyond endurance, will make a clean breast of the belief that he has a great ball club. The addition of Peckinpaugh, he figures, will change his entry from a first division team to a possible pennant winner. Peck, he declares, is the best shortstop in baseball.

BASEBALL

McNulty To Replace Speaker.

Dallas, Texas, March 11.—Pat McNulty, Ohio State university rookie, will replace Speaker in center field for the Indians if he continues to bat and field as he did yesterday, the gray-thatched leader announced today. The Cleveland team plays the first of two games with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

Fort Worth To Watch Cats.

Mineral Wells, Texas, March 11. —All Fort Worth is prepared to turn out today to watch their beloved Cats clash with the Cincinnati Reds and according to gossip in training camp, the chances are that the Texas gang will wallop the National leaguers. Baseball observers here say the Cincinnati team's infield is the strongest that aggregation has had in many years.

Griffith Determined.

Tampa, Fla., March 11. — "I'm going to have discipline even if I don't have any ball club," said Clark Griffith today. Some of his Senators have been cutting up. Scotch and such things come easy on these Florida coasts. "Goose" Goslin, a promising young outfielder, has been indefinitely suspended for breaking training rules and Griffith and Milan have warned several others.

White Sox To Make Bow.

San Antonio, Texas, March 11.—"Kid" Gleason's White Sox will make their initial bow of the season here this afternoon when they meet the world's champion Giants in an exhibition game. Due to the absence of several regulars, the Sox will present a make-shift lineup. Russell, Hodge and Acosta are expected to divide the twirling assignment.

Pirates To Go South.

West Baden, Ind., March 11. — This was the last day's workout of the Pittsburgh Pirates here. After a stiff practice this forenoon, the whole Pittsburgh outfit will leave later in the day for Hot Springs, their permanent training camp. Wilbur Cooper, star pitcher, is in better condition than for a long time. He has been pitching some wicked ones the last day or so. Earl Hamilton, who had a bad year in 1921, has taken a material brace. Other hurlers show improvement.

Cubs To Play Second Game.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 11. — The Cubs will play their second exhibition game of the season here this afternoon when they meet the Vernon Tigers. A home run and ragged work by the Cub infield gave the Portland Beavers a 7 to 5 victory over the Bruins in the game yesterday.

CRISSINGER CLARIFIES INTERVIEW ON BONUS

Says He Has No Power To Forbid Banks To Accept.

TERMS CERTIFICATES FORM FROZEN CREDIT

Would Be Frank To State Opinion If Advice Is Sought, He States.

Denial that he stated he would "forbid national banks to accept as collateral for loans adjusted compensation certificates in the event this plan for a soldier bonus is adopted by congress" was made by D. R. Crissinger, comptroller of the currency, who arrived in Marion Friday morning.

"What I said was this," Mr. Crissinger decared when seen here Friday evening:

"I have no authority to forbid national banks to accept the certificates. However, if my advice is sought, I would be frank to state that in my opinion, they constitute the worst kind of 'frozen credit.'

"I do not consider the proposed certificates good paper for a bank to accept. They would be non-negotiable and loans upon them would lead the banks with paper that could not be moved for the three-year period they cover.

"The entire difficulty at Washington has been created by the attempts of congress to put over the bonus without providing a sound method of financing their proposal," Mr. Crissinger added.

Mr. Crissinger expects to remain in Marion until Monday morning, when he will return to Washington. He is here on purely private business.

LODGE TO FORCE VOTE ON PACT

ence was not a material reduction of armament, its primary objective, but the Pacific agreement between the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan, which was intended as a substitute for the Anglo-Japanese alliance, was made in the course of a prepared speech by him in reply to the storm of opposition the four-power pact is encountering from his Democratic colleagues.

Underwood declared that the treaty "is not an alliance, but if it were an alliance, intended to keep the peace through arbitration rather than through force," he would support it.

"The dangers of past alliances," Underwood continued, "have not been due to the fact that they were binding agreements between the powers that signed them, but because they contemplated the use of force for the benefit of the signatory powers.

"The first step in any effort to keep peace among nations must be based upon a mutual agreement to respect the rights of others. The four-power pact does that. Its defeat would be a backward step in the life of this nation.

"If the senate ratifies it, I am fully satisfied that there will disappear not only any real cause for war, but that there will no longer exist the opportunity for war that has threatened us in the past two decades, and peace will be established between the four great sea powers that now control the destinies of the Pacific ocean."

International Peace Pact.

Underwood said he regarded the four-power pact as an "international agreement, for peace through discussion and mutual understanding," which "undoubtedly was necessary" before the naval treaty was signed or could be made effective.

He stated that the other powers which signed the Pacific pact "yielded to the request of Japan" that the Japanese homeland be taken out of it.

"Thus amended, the four-power pact provides for peace in the Pacific, guaranteed by mutual pledges of all the signatory powers to respect the integrity of the territory of each, and in case of differences between them to confer," Underwood said.

"There is nothing in the treaty to justify either of the interpretations given it by its critics, that it provides for an offensive or defensive alliance, or if it does not, that it means nothing. The real issue involved is that of peace in the Orient, the issue of safety to our country."

Hughes Scores Opposition.

Washington, March 11. — Secretary of State Hughes injected himself into the treaty fight in the senate today by writing a lengthy letter to Senator Underwood, one of the American delegates at the conference, in which he scored the thinly veiled intimations made in the senate that the American delegates were "imposed on" in the making of the four-powered pact.

Such intimations, Hughes declared vigorously, constitute a "reflection" on the American delegates.

The secretary's letter hinged about questions that have been raised in the senate as to the authorship of the treaty and the open charges made by some senators that it was "conceived by Balfour and written by Kato."

While not answering the question of "who wrote the treaty," directly, Secretary of State Hughes indicated in his letter that he himself was the author of the pact.

"The failure of the senate to ratify the treaty," Hughes declared, would be "nothing short of a national calamity."

MRS. OBENCHAIN IS CROSS-EXAMINED

Swears Kennedy Induced Her To Divorce Husband.

Los Angeles, March 11.—Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, on trial charged with murdering J. Belton Kennedy, the man she swore she loved, matched wits with Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes in her cross-examination.

The defendant was asked to tell of her relations with Kennedy; Arthur C. Burch, jointly indicted with her on the charge of murder, and Ralph H. Obenchain, her divorced husband, now one of her attorneys.

Kennedy, Mrs. Obenchain replied to Prosecutor Keyes, was the one who commanded her love. She said she never loved Burch and believed he never loved her. She declared Kennedy induced her to leave Mr. Obenchain within a month of her marriage, which took place Jan. 1, 1919. She said Kennedy had besought her to have her marriage annulled, but that later it was decided she would seek a divorce.

Mr. Keyes sprang a surprise by asking Mrs. Obenchain if she had ever been married to Kennedy "on the high seas." After a long pause, she replied "no." Mr. Keyes did not indicate what, if anything, was behind the question.

Questioned concerning Burch, Mrs. Obenchain repeated that he was simply a friend she had known since they had attended college, and that she never had any agreement with him to take the life of Kennedy.

Fourth Death Charged to Same Physician.

Toledo, March 11.—Mrs. Esther Teague, seventeen, of Indianapolis, died, last night, at Robinwood hospital as the result of an illegal operation.

In a death bed declaration, she accused a Toledo doctor. This is the fourth case in twenty days of deaths from illegal operations, in which the same physician is accused.

The death is said to have been caused by the use of unclean instruments. The accused is already indicted on other similar charges and out on bond of $10,000, pending trial.

Rheumatism Left Him As If By Magic!

Had Suffered Over 50 Years!

Now 83 Years, Yet a Big Surprise to Friends

Regains Strength Goes out Fishing, Back to Business, Laughsat "URIC ACID"

How the "Inner Mysteries" Reveals Startling Facts Overlooked By Doctors and Scientists For Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago" writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures,' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

How It Happened.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints, by taking treatments supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe; and that without it we could not live!

These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders, and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries" a remarkable book now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of the Star wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Clearwater, No. 433-C Street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget! If not a sufferer yourself hand this good news to some afflicted friend.—Adv.

"Inactivity or sluggishness or lazi..., even when it is accompanied ... apparent good health, is not to be met by scolding, sarcasm, verbal abuse, or constant propulsion by arguments as to the worth of industry; the driven child is more likely to be seized by a distaste for work than is the child whose inspired or spontaneous interests impel him to activity. The rational course is to offer an external stimulus that will tend to create an inner urge. The personal impetus, self-derived, arises from the stimulation of such primitive instincts as curiosity, pugnacity, and the like. There is little question but that the undue stress placed upon precepts as to the value of work is counteracted by the obvious acclaim which the community so frequently yields to those who do the least physical labor. Children often are aware of this distinction and desire to ally themselves with the honored group, who labor least, rather than with a group whose apparently more arduous efforts are attended with comparatively less community recognition."

Parents need not be told how "to offer an external stimulus that will tend to create an inner urge," as suggested by Dr. Wile. Parents, if they will, can read many yards of beautifully-wooded theories on laziness, and when they get done reading they are no better informed than they were in the beginning as to why this so-called laziness breaks out in the spring season more than it does perhaps at any other season of the year.

It's the call of the blood, the woods, the river bank and the stream!

URGES BUILDING CODE BE GIVEN SERIOUS THOUGHT

E. H. Cowan Gives an Analysis of Proposal.

SUGGESTS CAUTION LEST CODE BE TOO DRASTIC

Real Estate Board Secretary Sounds Warning on Clauses of Little Benefit.

Marion residents are urged to give serious thought to the question of a building code by E. H. Cowan, secretary of the Marion Real Estate board, in an analysis of the proposal. Caution is urged by Secretary Cowan lest the code be made too drastic. He also sounds a warning against inserting clauses which might be of little real benefit but would add materially to the cost of building construction.

Mr. Cowan commended the Good Government association for its activity in this direction and said, "If this association never accomplished anything else than the enactment of a suitable building code for this city it will have justified its existence."

Due to Economy.

"It should be understood by every one that all building regulations are restrictions upon free exercise of the builders discretion, enacted for the safety, health anr welfare of the people," Mr. Cowan said. "All buildings are built with the intention of keeping their cost at the lowest point possible. Objectional practices and features which have gone into building construction have been due to this idea of economy of cost. Now when these objectional things are ruled out it will increase the cost of building.

"The wonderful growth of Marion has been very largely due to the energy and enterprise of the comparatively small number of men engaged in the building and sale of low-cost homes. Although features may have crept into the building of such homes which may be regarded as unwise and may be forbidden by the proposed building code, the builders should be given the credit of attempting to produce homes within the purchasing power of men with modest means.

"The per cent. of additional cost of construction due to the new building code will depend entirely upon the wisdom displayed in its drafting and the good judgment exercised in its administration. Great care and judgment must be exercised lest we fall into the error of prescribing various rules and regulations whose effect upon the safety, health and welfare of the occupant of the building would be very small or negligible, yet whose cost would be material.

"If a fair code is adopted building will continue, but if a drastic code is adopted, and an expensive cost of construction and administration results, it will not only stop much normal development in Marion, but the man paying rent today is going to feel it seriously a short time later. Let us proceed with caution on this building code. Rush may be regretted later on.

Cost Falls on Occupants.

"It ought not to be necessary to point out that the additional burden due to increased building costs falls entirely upon the occupants of the building. If the occupant is a renter, the amount of his monthly rental is increased accordingly. If the occupant is the owner, he pays the bills when he buys or builds the building. There are some people in the world who still think that such expenses as these, as well as taxes, can be collected from landlords without any burden being placed upon the tenants. The fallacy of this is easily shown. If the landlord's resources were drawn upon to pay bills which he could not pay from his rentals his capital would soon disappear and he would become bankrupt. It is impossible to escape from the economic law that the ultimate consumer is the man who pays the bills.

"As has been intimated above the Good Government association is now actively engaged upon the drafting of a code. Two meetings have been held at which the code of the city of Springfield has been read paragraph by paragraph and its provisions adopted practically verbatim for recommendation to the city council for adoption. The next meeting will be held at the Harding High school building next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at which time it is thought the remainder of the code can be passed upon. The Good Government association has asked various organizations to send representatives to attend these meetings. The Real Estate board has had two men present at each meeting. So far as their observation goes and without knowing, personally, the names of all the men present, they did not find the general public represented through the various organizations of the city as completely as this important subject demands. It is to be hoped that at the meeting next Tuesday evening, all organizations who have been invited will send their representative so that the public may be informed.

"One other feature of any building code which should receive careful consideration is the manner in which it is to be administered. The best code in the world in the hands of incapable, biased, narrow-minded or dishonest officials may easily become an unbearable burden upon all building operations, or result in confining them to a small number of favored builders. It is not especially necessary that an inspector be a craftsman in any building line. It is much more important that he be honest and impartial. The well known results obtained by Fire Chief McFarland in the inspection of electrical installations is proof of this statement. A man does not have to be, for instance, a bricklayer mason to know whether there is a liner in a flue or whether a wall is eight inches thick; nor does he have to be a carpenter to know whether the provisions of the code with reference to the carpenter work are being complied with. Any man of high-school education or its equivalent with good judgment or ordinary intelligence, after careful study of a building code, working under the supervision of a competent inspector or board, in whom the right of appeal should be lodged, can efficiently and economically administer the new building code. In a town of this size and in ordinary house-building operations it will be much less expensive and equally satisfactory to have all the inspection done by one man.

"If the thoughts which have been above expressed stir up the people of Marion so that they will think upon this subject, my object will have been accomplished even though not all of my views may be generally accepted."

BUILDING PROSPECTS ARE VERY FAVORABLE

In Opinion of Architect Fred D. Jacobs.

"Building prospects for the coming year are very favorable, not only in Marion but all over the state," Fred D. Jacobs, architect, declared today. "I am guided in this opinion by the number of inquiries being made for plans of buildings which are now under consideration. I am also unable to find draftsmen for an increasing volume of business and this in itself is an accurate indication that building prospects all over the state are good."

Mr. Jacobs has been receiving bids on a new $60,000 high-school building to be erected at Meeker. No bids will be received after February 17 at noon. Work on the new school will be pushed as soon as the contract is awarded. It is expected to have it completed and ready for occupancy some time next fall.

Mr Jacobs also will start receiving bids Saturday on a new consolidated high-school building at New Washington, in Crawford county, plans for which were drawn by him. The building will cost between $250,000 and $350,000 and will be one of the finest high schools in this section of the state. It is planned, not for the present, but to meet needs of the community ten or twenty years from now. Bids on the building must be in by April 11.

MAY BEGIN WORK ON NEW HOTEL APRIL 1

Collections on First Installment for Stock Being Made.

The campaign for funds with which to erect the new Harding hotel reached the stage this week where promoters of the project announced that its success is now practically assured. Work of collecting the first installment of money pledged, amounting to twenty-five per cent. of total subscriptions, is now going forward. Those engaged in making the collections report that they so far have met with gratifying success.

With the financial campaign virtually closed energies of the promoters will be turned in the near future to completion of final plans for the building. Purchases of materials will not be started until the final plans and specifications have been drawn. It is expected this work will be completed inside of two months.

It also is expected that excavation for the foundation of the new hotel can be started by April 1. The option on the site at the corner of Orchard and Center streets expires March 20. It probably will be closed some time next week.

B. F. NOEL BUILDING TWO-STORY HOUSE

New Residence on Hane Avenue, South of Church Street.

Work on a two-story frame dwelling, being constructed for B. F. Noel, on Hane avenue near Church street, is being rushed to completion. The new residence, which is being erected by Contractor Harrison Shaffstall, will be complete and ready for occupancy in about three weeks. It was started the middle of January.

The house will contain six rooms, bath, furnace, electric lights and all other modern appliances. The building is twenty-two by twenty-six feet and will have porches front and rear. When complete it will cost approximately $3,700.

Having failed in their endeavors to put over any deals for new players, President Navin and Manager Cobb have decided to stand pat with the present Detroit outfit.

STARNER BUILDING IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Structure of Most Modern Type of Consruction.

MAY PROVE OPENING WEDGE FOR OTHERS

Foundations Constructed To Carry Eight-Story Building. May Add Floors.

The upper floors of the new Starner building, latest addition to Marion's business district, practically are ready for occupancy. The structure is of the most modern type of construction and is expected to prove the opening wedge for a number of buildings to be erected for various purposes in the business section of the city. The new hotel planned as an eight-story structure, will be the next to adopt the same general construction idea.

The Starner building is four stories high. The foundations and walls were constructed to carry an eight story building and the additional stories may be added as the need for them becomes apparent. The building proper is sixty by eighty-three feet, built of reinforced concrete, the footings, foundations pilasters and piers being of that type of construction, while the building proper is reinforced concrete-steel tile construction, with each floor sufficiently strong to carry its individual load. The east and south walls are of reinforced concrete while the north and west walls, on the alley and street are of high class tapestry brick.

The floors are well ventilated with an air shaft sixteen by sixteen feet reaching through the building from basement to roof, giving plenty of fresh air and furnishing an abundance of light to the various rooms and halls in addition to the many windows in the four walls of the structure. There is a full basement with boiler room large enough to take care of any additions made to the building in the future. The building at present is arranged for a modern market house on the first floor with ten stalls for various lines of retail merchandise. The second and third floors will be devoted to professional offices, twelve office suites being located on the second floor and thirteen on the third floor. The fourth floor will be divided into two sections, the south portion being arranged for one of the most complete apartment suites in the city to be used by Dr. A. A. Starner, the builder and owner, and his family. The other half of the fourth floor is being made into a club quarters, with a large front room and assembly room each, about twenty-two by fifty feet. The building will be heated with vapor heat, and each floor is equipped with hot and cold water service. A passenger elevator is being installed and will serve the building from basement to roof. The floors and stairs are of terrazzo art tile with the exception of the first floor which is of colored concrete construction. The building is fire proof as near as it is physically possible.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS START STOCK CAMPAIGN

With View To Building Home on North State Street.

Knights of Columbus joined the ranks of prospective spring builders when they launched a campaign this week for the sale of additional stock in the K. of C. Holding company. If the campaign is successful a new building will be erected on the site of the old market-house, on north State street, which is owned by the holding company.

The company was organized last May with a capital stock of $50,000. Only part of the stock was sold when the company was organized and the campaign, now being conducted, is for the purpose of disposing of the remainder of the issue. Officers of the company are C. P. Graf, president, F. C. Lutz, vice president, and J. P. McAndrew, secretary.

Plans for the new building are at present in a tentative stage and can not be definitely decided upon until the financial drive has been completed. It is the hope of the company to erect a three-story building, of the most modern type, with a foundation capable of standing further additions.

It is expected the sale of stock can be closed in April and at that time definite plans for the future will be announced. The aim of the company at present is to build a new home for the Knights of Columbus this summer at the latest.

Subject to Assessment.

A ruling of interest to village real estate owners of the state was included in a budget of opinions handed down this week by Attorney General John G. Price. The attorney general held that under laws dealing with assessment of lands in connection with state-aid highway improvements benefitted real estate within the assessment zone and within the corporate limits of a village is subject to assessment notwithstanding the fact that the highway improved may not be within the corporate limits of the village.

Sometimes the man who knows it all has to be shown.

"Speaking of a Good Investment—

"I believe I have found a sure bet. It's the home I bought after wasting enough money in rent to pay for a home. I am living in my investment, getting daily dividends in golden contentment; I know it is safe and certain, because it is under my direct control. How foolish I was that I didn't buy sooner!"

Remarks substantially such as the foregoing you will make once you get into a home of your own.

Spring has sent her first harbingers; it won't be long until nature will be flowering and human hearts will be instinct with the desire to beautify their surroundings.

You should be in your own home this spring and begin enjoying the finest phase of life—which is nothing more than having a home and expressing in the many charms you can invest in it your individuality and artistic appreciation.

Watch those who own their homes and note the joyful pride they take in making them attractive.

Don't you envy them?

My Marriage Problems

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

For an instant of dismay I could only stare at my sister-in-law, Elizabeth. I dislike her exceedingly, but as long as she is in my home I would not willingly give her cause for offense. Of course, I acquitted her of voluntary eavesdropping but I could not help the mental comment that if Lillian or I had been in her place neither of us would have dreamed of letting any one know we had heard even involuntarily a conversation not intended for our ears.

"I realize, of course," Elizabeth went on in the same silkily sweet tone, "that I am a living exemplification of the old adage concerning eavesdroppers never hearing any good of themselves. But I can assure you that I did not intentionally—"

"Dear Mrs. Harrison," Lillian interrupted in her smoothest manner, "do come here and see these children. You shouldn't miss a second of Mary's performance. I was just saying to Madge that the dramatic world will hear from your child most vividly some day, and she was agreeing with me. But Madge is such a partisan of Marion's that she could not bear to have all the glory taken [illegible] while conceding Mary's dramatic superiority, she insists that Marion can do the acrobatic stunts better. But that is something yet to be tested. Do let me get you this chair."

Her insouciant good-humor, her suavity, her subtle air of being someway the last word in good breeding and knowledge of the world, triumphed over even the sullen resentment which I knew Elizabeth Harrison was masking with her eternally—I almost wrote infernally—placid smile. My sister-in-law allowed herself to be 'rawn into the room and seated in the arm-chair which Lillian placed in front of the window.

As she leaned toward the open window her small daughter looked up and saw her. With a gesture that would have done justice to a prestidigitateur, she unclasped from her neck and dropped to the grass beside her the necklace of quaintly carved Oriental beads which was her mother's. Then with a wary eye upon her maternal parent, she—while apparently posturing in a serpentine dance—used her wriggling toes to such effect that soon she had the necklace in the comparatively safe shelter of a log stump. The thing was done so cleverly that if I had not seen her first gesture when she unclasped the necklace I could not have guessed that she was making any other movement than that required by the dance she was picturing.

So the child had taken the necklace without her mother's permission or knowledge! Elizabeth's discipline had not inculcated a sense of honor in her daughter, at least. Again the suspicion crossed my mind that Elizabeth used some other method to insure obedience in public than her vaunted development of the child's individual freedom. And though my conscience forbade the experiment, I knew that I meant to watch developments in the matter of the purloined necklace. Elizabeth had been so nonchalant when her children had meddled with my furnishings and draperies that I wondered how she would react to the despoiling of her own possessions.

I had no time for much mental speculation however, for Mary, evidently with a canny eye to engaging her mother's attention, repeated the acrobatic stunts which she and her brothers had been doing. We at the window dutifully applauded, and Lillian repeated again to Mrs. Harrison her assurance of Mary's dramatic talent.

Jerry Tiger, however, was growing restive. Mary's keen eyes saw it, and evidently decided that if she kept the "menagerie" and Jerry, it was time to redeem her promise to have Marion "perform."

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," she intoned with creditable mimicry of a ringmaster, "we will witness a most wonderful performance of the world's greatest acro-bat-i-enne, Mademoiselle Elo-ise Sera-phine who will favor us with an exhibition of marvellous—marvellous—what is it you're going to do, Marion?" she finished in a stage whisper that could be heard by us.

Marion advanced nonchalantly to the center of the lawn and spoke pieces.

"I will first turn some handsprings," she said, proceeding to display an accomplishment which she has practiced almost from infancy, and in which she is marvellously proficient for a child. Lillian pressed her foot against mine, and I returned the signal, assuring her I recognized, as she did, that Marion was on her toes, and would outshine Mary in acrobatic stunts or die right there on the lawn.

And outshine all the other children Marion did, and in so effective a fashion that long before she had finished, Mrs. Harrison rose languidly with an air of infinite boredom, and announced in her most saccharine voice:

"Really, I don't believe I ought to waste my time watching this any longer. I should think you would be afraid to have your daughter exercise so strenuously, Mrs. Underwood. It is so apt to develop her muscle at the expense of her mentality."

TAKES HOLD AND HELPS

Colds that "hang on" should be gotten rid of, for no one can stand the strain of racking cough, disturbed sleep and irritation of throat and lungs. Marie Heisler, Freeport, Ill., writes: "I had more or less of a cough for years and I have taken quite a number of medicines. None of them takes hold and helps like Foley's Honey and Tar." This old, reliable cough syrup promptly helps coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Contains no opiates. Children like it. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Arrange for Dance.

Royal Neighbors at their meeting Thursday evening made arrangements for a dance to be given at Schwinger's hall March 14. By mistake the affair was characterized in Friday evening's Star as a banquet.

Lamps of Early Days To be at Centennial

The following story relative to lamps in the period when Marion was founded, was written by Eugenia Covert Dickson, granddaughter of Colonel W. W. Conklin, who came to Marion county in 1822:

Up to the time that the town of Marion was organized it was known only as Jacob's Well; in connection with which a memorable incident occurred. Some commissioners encamped in what is now the south part of town and had dined on salt bacon and other food, but lacked water to quench their thirst.

About 11 o'clock at night, one of the commissioners, Jacob Foust by name, declared with great emphasis that he could stand his thirst no longer. Thereupon he arose and began digging in a moist place, saying that he would "dig down to a very hot country or find water." He found an abundance of fine water at four feet. This well was later used by General Harrison's army, and also for many years by emigrants, and was always known as Jacob's Well in honor of Mr. Foust; and has been located about the foot of Gurley's hill.

It was this accessibility of water that probably influenced the commissioners to decide on Uber Baker's town as the county seat and thereafter known as the town of Marion. There was a great jollification at this decision and the enthusiasm knew no bounds. Having no artillery at hand they improvised a substitute by boring holes with a two inch augur in several large oak trees, and filled them with charges of powder which they fired, shattering the trees to splinters.

Betty Grease Lamps.

Thus were the beginnings of Marion, a few acres of land, a few log houses and the rest in the state of nature, unlighted except in the most primitive methods. Grease or lard lamps were the only means that made a glimmering in the profound darkness of those early days. Besides the firelight of the hearth, where the pot hung, cooking the supper, only one small flicker from the twisted rag stuck in the lard cup, furnished the light to work by. In the very early Egyptian sun dried lamps, crude affairs about two inches long, showing the outlines which centuries later developed into those of the Greek and Roman period, we see the little Betty grease lamp of the early Marion days, and that many of us preserve as interesting keepsakes of our old family's pioneer life. We beg, or borrow or buy, so anxious are we to have reminders of those bygone days.

These Betty lamps are found in many countries even now, for my sailor boy brought me one of polished brass he picked up in France after the war. A rather grand pewter Betty lamp on a standard came from Dr. Nichol's family.

Soon wicks strung on sticks and repeatedly dipped in kettles of hot tallow fat formed candles, which method of candle making was in vogue long before and even after molds were used. It was the late comers who brought the molds and candle making became the autumn work of the families while the work could be done out of doors. When a clearer blaze was wanted alum was added to the hot tallow. A professional candle-maker went from house to house with his mold for thirty-six candles on a standard with handles, making up their winter's supply. Where they were made at home, the children helped in twisting the wicks and threading the points of the molds, and when you see the small holes at the bottom of the long slender tube, you wonder at the skill and patience of the old time children who did them.

Even more wonderful was the beautiful needlework of our grandmothers. Making fine hand tucks in the bosoms of their husbands' shirts by the light of one tallow dip, two were an extravagance. Furthermore they were such expert knitters, that when they came to the plain round knitting on the socks, they blew out the one candle for the sake of economy and worked in the dark.

Candlesticks Highly Prized.

Many of the candlesticks in those days were beautiful, pewter and brass and glass with snuffers, and are highly prized and indicate grandparents of the old hardy and sturdy pioneer type. They had to be.

In those early days of the Presbyterian church, which was founded in 1828, it was lighted by candles in tin holders hung on the walls, with big tin reflectors behind them, also a row of candles around the pulpit.

In the same way was the old "Blue Ball Tavern" lighted, where many of the parties were held. Gay rollicking parties in those days, but wholesome in their gaiety. Only three miles south of town, on the Barks farm, almost in the road, was built this two storied tavern. In the digging of the well at this place was found a peculiar oval stone, slaty blue in color, ridgy and probably of the glacier period. These stones were frequently found later in the digging of the wells in town. This peculiar and unusual stone suggested the name of the tavern, which was rather a fine house in those days, two storied as it was with a double-decked veranda. From the lower deck was suspended an old lantern, a square wooden one, eight by ten, by twelve, with an old Betty grease lamp inside for light. Both the blue stone and the lantern will be on exhibition at the centennial in June, as well as some of the other lanterns used in those days, for all persons going about at night had to use a lantern to see to balance themselves on the single narrow plank laid for a sidewalk then.

Lanterns Have Names.

Every type of lantern had a name. There was the William Tell, a perforated tin lantern, handed down in the Jacob Haberman family, and the Benjamin Franklin, with its square glass sides, from Samuel Salter's family and also from that of Major Busby's.

The camphene light came in about the forties, a compound mixture with the oil of turpentine used in tall glass lamps with two upright small metal tubes about one and one-quarter inches high to hold the wicks, and used without chimneys. Sometimes holes were drilled in the sides of these tubes to give an added light.

Being of more recent use these lamps are familiar to many of us, some perhaps remembering those used in Dr. Fisher's family and also seen in the old R. H. Johnson home now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty. A beautiful tall whale oil lamp with hanging prisms is known to have been in the Patten family.

One of the bright women of the older generations, rich in lore and memories, saw two Delaware Indians, with their squaws behind them, riding through the town in 1843, these camphene days, and in the first school she went to were several Wyandot Indian girls and boys.

Afraid of Coal Oil.

Soon after, about 1850, coal oil was brought to town under various names, rock oil, burning fluid and rose oil; all coal oil but not the refined product as we now know it. At first people were afraid of it, because of its inflamability, but as light being so much more brilliant than their old lights, gradually its use became very general. The rose oil for some reason, possibly from its color, was a penny or two higher in price, so that soon red glass bowls to the lamps began to appear, or a piece of red flannel was put in the lamp, anything to make it look red and not pay the extra penny.

Some of us are not so old but that our memories can hark back to the old gashouse days, where many of us took our babies to breathe the gasified air for whooping cough. Through the energy and enterprise of Dr. Fisher, gas was introduced into the town ahead of all other towns of its size in the state.

Then it was that the streets were first lighted. Gas posts holding a lantern shaped glass globe and fixtures, dotted the center of the town. On the edge of the evening a man with a ladder and taper, made the round, lighting the streets, except on the moonlight nights.

The gas post some times had other uses than that of lighting. One John Wildbahn lost his false teeth and advertised for them. Dr. Galley, afterwards the blind Mayor, found a jaw bone of some animal and for a lark hung it on the lamp post in front of the bank with a card suggesting "these might be John Wildbahn's lost teeth."

All the houses that could put on a grand air by installing gas, with chandeliers and side brackets, most of which houses still use it to the exclusion of the yet more modern, convenient electricity.

The old gasometers remained a land mark mor many years after the Natural Gas company bought out this first organization. They finally were sold, the place built up and is now known as Linden Place.

Gradually Marion evolved into a city, reaching out to all the modern conveniences and beautifying features of a progressive city. Merchants brought on more up-to-date and attractive goods. Electricity became more than a simple house lighting and necessity. It made Center sreet a brilliant kaleidoscopic illumination with a display feature that revolutionized our stores. It remained for some of the public-minded citizens to introduce the cluster system of electric lighting for the central streets, by putting up several cluster posts at their own expense to demonstrate what a beautiful and metropolitan appearance it would give to the city. Again our city set the pace for other towns and it was one of the attractive features of our notable summer of 1920.

Torch Lights of Campaigns.

I must not pass over the torch lights and the big bonfires of the early political campaigns, especially at the ratification meetings. There was nothing like them to arouse the vociferous enthusiasm of the young voter. The little tin can of lard with its heavy wick, swung on a pivot, at the end of a pole, gave a lasting and safe blaze. With 100 of these in a procession in the hands of the "wide-a-wakes" with a band or two, together with a big bonfire of a week's collection of tar barrels and other tinder, the sight was a very imposing and heartening one to the candidate, as he very often rode into town on horseback. The first torch-light procession recorded was during Fremont-Buchanan campaign and continued through to Blaine, when it died and has never been revived.

With more dignity and with greater continued interest was the campaign of our most distinguished and honored citizen two years ago. Lights played their part then in a big ball of glory capping the beautiful latticed columns bearing the intaligios of the head of our townsman and festooned from column to column with the oak leaves of victory. The brilliant electric flag on the court-house proclaimed to the thousands of visitors who came to us, the waving standard of our patriotism.

That campaign has since focused the light of our country, nay of the whole world on the product of our beautiful little city, President Warren G. Harding. God bless him.
